2 Dead, Score Hurt in Clash In Puerto Rico

Unsuccessful Attempt Made to Kill Gov. Winship

RIOTS ON STREETS

Several Suspects are Arrested After Shooting

Ponce, Puerto Rico—(AP)—At least two were killed and twenty persons were injured, some seriously, today in an exchange of shots which followed an unsuccessful attempt on the life of Major General Blanton Winship, governor of Puerto Rico.

Rioting broke out while the streets were choked with crowds watching a parade.

Governor Winship was fired on as he stood in the reviewing stand with other executives of the island government. He remained in the stand and the parade continued.

Several suspects were held. Others escaped but detectives said they knew who the rioters were.

Senator P. J. Seralles, who was standing in the reviewing box near Governor Winship, was struck in the arm and slightly injured.

Thousands had paraded past and the crowds were orderly until shots crackled over the music of the national guard band as it marched by the reviewing box.

Police returned the fire immediately. Large crowds watching celebrations of the fortieth anniversary of the landing of American troops in the Spanish-American war

Lieutenant Colonel Irizzary of the Puerto Rico National Guard was wounded fatally.

Among the injured were Miguel Angel Garcia Mendez, speaker of the house of representatives, and Francisco Lopez Dominguez, commissioner of agriculture and commerce.

Policemen said the first shot was believed to have been fired by a member of the nationalist party, the group demanding independence for the United States' insular possession.

Left Army in 1933

General Winship, who retired from the United States army in 1933, has been governor of Puerto Rico since Feb. 5, 1934. He is 68 years old.

Labor troubles and nationalist disturbances have spotted almost his entire term.

The most serious incident was the slaying of E. Francis Riggs, insular chief of police and former United States army colonel, by two nationalists at San Juan Feb. 24, 1936. Riggs, Yale graduate and member of a prominent Washington and Maryland family, was riding unarmed in an automobile when the attack occurred.

On June 9, 1937, a dozen shots were fired in San Juan at Judge Robert A. Cooper of the United States district court, who had sentenced eight Puerto Rican nationalists to prison terms for conspiracy to overthrow the United States government on the island.

More recently labor troubles, principally among longshoreman demanding higher wages, have added to Governor Winship's problems.

TARGET OF PLOT

Major General Blanton Winship, governor of Puerto Rico, was uninjured today when wouldbe assassins fired upon him as he stood in a reviewing stand during a parade. At least two persons were killed and a score wounded. Several suspects were arrested.

Agreement Puts End to North Chicago Strike

North Chicago, Ill. — (AP) — Employes of the Chicago Hardware Foundry company headed back to work today after an agreement between company officials and the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers union, a CIO affiliate, ended a strike which had kept the plant idle since June 6.

A 5 per cent cut in pay will be put into effect for this week under the agreement worked by John B. Scheck, federal labor department conciliator, and for six months, beginning Aug. 1, a wage scale 10 per cent lower than the old scale will be in effect.

The strike was called in protest of a 10 per cent wage reduction.

Paging Will Hayes

Australian censors last year cut our 28 per cent of British and 15 per cent of United States films as "objectionable." This rather upsets the belief that all harmful pictures originate in Hollywood. Or perhaps it's merely the Australian point of view. At any rate we're just 13% less 'objectionable" than our conventional English cousins as far as movies are concerned.

Four persons were injured in seven accidents in the Appleton area over the weekend. Although none of the injuries was serious, three of the accidents involved hit-and-run drivers.

Donald Pegel, 20, 920 N. Morrison street, suffered a broken nose and Melvin and Elmer Haferbecker, route 2, Appleton, minor bruises when cars driven by Melvin Haferbecker and Earl Engel, Appleton, collided about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon on Highway 47 north of Appleton. Both machines were going north. Pegel was taken to St Elizabeth hospital. The Engel car was damaged about the rear and the Haferbecker machine about the front end.

A car driven by Frank Thennis, Wrightstown, was damaged when sideswiped by a hit-and-run driver about 1:15 this morning on the Highway 41 detour north of Kaukauna. Thennis was going west and the unidentified driver east when the collision occurred, according to Jack Frenzl, county motorcycle officer, who was called.

Hit-Run Driver

An automobile driven by Lawrence Utschig, route 2, Appleton, was damaged when struck by a hit-and-run driver on Highway 10 three miles west of Appleton about 12 o'clock last night. Utschig was going west and the hit-run driver east when the collision occurred, according to Frenzl.

The Utschig car swerved into a culvert and was badly damaged. Utschig suffered a chest injury. A Boucherville, Quebec—(Canadian Press)—The British pick-a-back plane Mercury took off from the St. Lawrence river at 9:50 a. m., C. S. T., today for Botwood, Newfoundland, on the second leg of her return trip from Port Washington, N. Y., to Ireland.

The mercury alighted in the air harbor here at 8:26 a. m., C. S. T., from Port Washington. From Botwood, her schedule calls for flights to Horta, in the Azores, Lisbon, Portugal, and Foynes, Ireland.

No More 'Side Trips' For 3 Women Tourists

Albuquerque, N. M. —(AP)— Undaunted by four days of wandering without food or water in western New Mexico's badlands, three hardy women tourists studied road maps of Grand canyon and Yellowstone park today.

They'll continue their western trip, they agreed, but there'll "be no more side trips."

A 23-mile excursion to see the Perpetual Ice Caves, a natural refrigerator eroded in the lava beds south of Grants, N. M., brought them four days and four nights of almost unendurable hardships after they became lost.

The trio, Misses Laura and Irene Piedalue and Marie Antoinette de Lafforest, said the only nourishment they had from Tuesday morning until they were rescued Saturday was a few leaves, dried berries, twigs and flowers.

Commission to Hear Charges Against Chief

Police and Fire Body of Racine to Have Special Meeting Tonight

LUTTER RAPS MAYOR

Accused Official Declares 'Spencer Crowd Out To Get My Job'

Racine —(AP)— A special meeting of the police and fire commission was called for tonight by Chairman Steven Thomas to consider what action should be taken in the malfeasance complaint filed by Mayor Roy A. Spencer against Police Chief Grover C. Lutter.

In the wake of a series of gambling raids in which 117 persons were arrested, Spencer filed the charges against Lutter late Saturday, asked the official's immediate removal.

Lutter, who was vacationing at Eagle Lake, Racine county, when the raids were staged Friday, termed the charges a "dirty, lowdown trick" and said "the Spencer crowd is out to get my job." Lutter was made chief in a previous administration.

Mayor's Statement

Spencer said the charges were made because of the "failure of the chief of police to act despite the repeated complaints about gambling reflected on my administration and made Friday's action necessary."

Thomas declared: "We're going to see that Chief Lutter has every opportunity to present his side. We are going to follow our own procedure and not be told what to do by any politician."

In his detailed complaint, Spencer charged that Lutter had permitted gambling to flourish in Racine, that he used intoxicating liquor while on duty, that he had used police squad cars for other than police purposes, that he possessed three slot machines illegally and that he failed to maintain proper police discipline.

ACTION AT CUDAHY

Cudahy —(AP)— An estimated 200 pinball machines were removed from taverns and other business places yesterday after Police Chief John C. Medrow threatened prosecution unless they were taken out.

Premier Silent on Pact With Italy

Refuses to Reveal Program on Putting Accord Into Effect

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain fought off determined laborite attempts in the house of commons today to find out his plans about putting the Anglo-Italian pact into force before parliament adjourns Friday.

He asserted Britain and Italy never had reached an understanding on what was meant by the "Spanish settlement" which he made a prior condition to operation of the agreement.

Hard-pressed for an answer whether "during the recess the prime minister will be at liberty to implement the agreement by putting his own interpretations on the phrase," Chamberlain said "there is no change in the situation."

Philip John Noel-Baker, a laborite, demanded to know whether the government itself "at liberty to bring into force an agreement of this importance without informing commons as to the meaning on an essential clause of such an agreement."

Chamberlain declared he already had told the house he did not exclude the possibility it might be called during the recess to "consider such a situation as might arise."

Answering a question on the Anglo-French ministerial conferences during last week's state visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Paris, Chamberlain said only that "complete harmony on views" established at previous joint conferences had been maintained.

Woman Is Sentenced for Having Military Data

Belfast, Northern Ireland —(AP)—A woman was sentenced today to a year's imprisonment for possessing "Irish republican army documents" containing elaborate details of the strength and disposition of Belfast police and the storage of police arms.

The woman, Mrs. Mary McAreavey, fainted when the sentence was pronounced. Her attorneys lodged an appeal.

Authorities said she also had reports dealing with military barracks and the movement of the British air force motor trucks carrying bombs.

Labor Board Favoring CIO, Federation Charge

Washington — (AP)—The American Federation of Labor accused the national labor relations board today of retarding a united labor movement by favoring the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The federation expressed the opinion in an editorial in its monthly publication. It said the board the administering the Wagner labor act to "promote the committee which seeks to set up a dual labor movement despite all the social and economic waste which dualism involves."

Michigan Senator Thinks Roosevelt Will Seek Third Term but Doubts Success

Washington —(AP)— Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) expressed opinion today that President Roosevelt would seek a third term.

"I expect him to try," Vandenberg said, "but I do not expect him to succeed."

The statement was contained in a letter which the senator wrote to a Michigan constituent and which was made public by a friend here.

It came in the midst of speculation over third term possibilities.

Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan declared in a speech at Traverse City, Mich., yesterday that "we may have to draft the president for four more years of leadership."

John M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, asserted last week that WPA Administrator Hopkins actually had launched a third term movement when he told reporters 90 per cent of those on relief were for the president.

"Against "Imperial Tenure"

Vandenberg, who is in Michigan, wrote that "I may be forgiven for commenting upon the opposition's presidential problem inasmuch as Mr. Farley (Democratic national chairman) has so freely commented upon ours."

He said Mr. Roosevelt "may be stopped in his own Democratic convention where the more literal Jeffersonians will cling to their party founder's horror of any such imperial tenure."

In 1928, he recalled, all but four Democratic senators at that time put themselves on record as opposed to a third term for President Coolidge after Coolidge had made his famous "I do not choose to run" statement

Dictatorship Threat

Those subscribing to the opposition resolution, he said, included Barkley of Kentucky, now the senate Democratic leader; Wagner of New York, Thomas of Oklahoma, Pittman of Nevada, Swanson, now secretary of the navy; Black, now a supreme court justice, and La-Follette, Wisconsin Progressive.

Vandenberg declared he would not "presume to suggest" that those who then sought to stop the "draft Coolidge" movement would find now "any less urgency in stopping Roosevelt — particularly at a moment when the threat of dictators has become a vivid reality in the world

"With such an array of opposition, I do not really see how Candidate Roosevelt could win his own convention. Yet I do not see where he can find his 'Charlie McCarthy' with personal power enough to stand any show of perpetuating the dynasty," he said.

Says Steel Firms Get U. S. Jobs by Reducing Wages

S. W. O. C. Head Claims Republic, Bethlehem Underbid Others

Washington—(AP)— Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, complained today that Republic and Bethlehem Steel corporations "fatten themselves on lucrative government contracts" by cutting wages.

Since they do not pay wages as high as competitors, the CIO leader said, they can offer lower bids and thus obtain the government business.

Murray made the charge while asking that the labor department set minimum wages in the steel and iron industry at from 45 to 62½ cents an hour. He suggested geographical differentials.

L. Metcalfe Walling, of the labor department, predicted earlier that a minimum wage for workers on government contracts would become the base wage for the entire steel industry.

Start Hearings

The labor department began public hearings today to determine the prevailing wage in the industry, which manufacturers must pay in performing government contracts.

Under Murray's suggestion the country would be divided into three regions for minimum wage purposes. A minimum pay rate of 62½ cents an hour would be set for the eastern area, which produces 94.2 per cent of the nation's steel. This region would indicate all states east of the western borders of Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri, and north of the southern borders of Missouri, Kentucky and Virginia.

For the western region, Murray suggested a minimum of 60 cents an hour; and for the south, 45 cents.

Japanese Forces in Intensified Drive To Take Kiukiang

Shanghai —(AP)— Japan's air, land and naval forces combined their power today in an intensified drive on Kiukiang, key Yangtze river port, but Chinese defenders of the battered city were reported holding firm.

Japanese spokesman here refused to reveal details of the battle, but foreign sources in the vicinity of Kiukiang said the invaders were using all available power to gain the river gateway to Hankow, 135 miles upriver.

Reports that Japanese bombers had hit Anglo-American oil distributing properties on the outskirts of Kiukiang Sunday still were unconfirmed.

Youth and Girl Killed In Automobile Smashup

Algoma, Wis. —(AP)— Two young people returning home early Sunday from a dance were killed when their car left the road and struck a culvert on County Trunk D south of here.

Sheriff Walter Wessely said Marvin Wendricks, 19, son of Mr and Mrs. F. W. Wendricks of Algoma, driver of the car, apparently was killed instantly.

Agnes Hagnes, 18, of near Kodan, Wis., Wendricks' companion, died a few minutes after she was found by a farmer.

Heavy Damage in Storm Districts

12 Killed, Loss Runs Into Millions of Dollars in Dozen States

By the Associated Press

Clearing skies today in many sections gave hope of an early end to ruinous floods and rainstorms which took 12 lives and caused property and crop damage totaling millions of dollars in a dozen states

New England was hardest hit by week-long downpours which sent rivers out of their banks all along the Atlantic seaboard. The damage was conservatively put at more than $3,000,000.

The tobacco crop loss in Connecticut was reported as $1,000,000 and similarly-heavy tolls were exacted of crops in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Mills Shut Down

Textile mills were shut down in many towns, throwing thousands of persons temporarily out of work. Hundreds of families were homeless in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and West Virginia.

The storms claimed four lives in New Jersey during the weekend Three persons were killed by lightning in Ohio.

An unidentified hero who swam the raging San Saba river at San Saba, Texas, to secure a lifeline saved a score of persons marooned on rooftops. Earlier the river had claimed two victims. Thirty houses were swept away, leaving 300 homeless

New Jersey authorities estimated crop damage in that state at $500,000, and eastern Pennsylvania farmers suffered a $1,000,000 loss Twelve hundred flood refugees in West Virginia taxed rescue facilities Crop and property damage was estimated at $200,000

Count Frequently Sees Son at London Hotel

London—(AP)—Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, pledged not to visit his American-born wife, the former Barbara Hutton, was reported today to be seeing their 2-year-old son, Lance, regularly in his hotel.

Death Toll of 34 May Increase in Colombian Tragedy After Stunting Military Plane Plunges Into Crowd

Bogota, Colombia —(AP)— The government announced today it would pay the funeral expenses of 34 persons killed at a military review yesterday when a stunting airplane hurtled into a crowd of spectators

The state decided also to pay medical expenses of 150 persons injured, many of them gravely. There were no new deaths this morning among those injured, although it had been feared many would die during the night.

President Alfonso Lopez, unhurt although he was in a stand struck by the falling plane, visited various hospitals where the injured lay, accompanied by his ministers.

Heads of some of the victims were severed by the propellors of the plane, which speeded at 90 feet above the new military field, Campo de Marte, side-slipped suddenly and dropped into the crowd.

The plane tore steps from the reviewing stand occupied by President Alfonso Lopez, President-elect Eduardo Santos, War Minister Pumarego and other officials. None there was injured.

A wing tip brushed a stand occupied by the diplomatic corps, and the wife of the Japanese charge d'affaires was slightly hurt.

Many in the unprotected crowd were struck by flying fragments as the plane slashed its way to a halt. A spray of gasoline exploded and burned some, destroying the plane and the body of Pilot Lieutenant Abadia.

The dangerous activity by the aviator was noticed by officials a moment before the crash, and President-elect Santos remarked to the war minister that he did not like such stunting over the crowd.

The day had been a festive occasion, the 155th anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar, who led the battle for South America's liberation from Spain early in the nineteenth century.

4 Suspended U.A.W. Officers Called to Trial

Fight Breaks Out as Supporters of Group Demand Admittance

ADDES IS INVOLVED

Clash Results After Guards Are Asked to Admit More 'Visitors'

Detroit—(AP)—Amid charges and counter-charges of communistic activities, the executive board of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO) called four suspended international vice presidents to trial today

A fist fight broke out as supporters of the officers suspended by President Homer Martin demanded admittance to the union headquarters where the trials were scheduled to open.

George F. Addes, expelled as secretary-treasurer of the union recently after a trial, bloodied the nose of Maurice Silverman, advertising solicitor for the U.A.W.A. newspaper. There were other scuffles.

Addes, who seeks a new trial, said he struck in self-defense after someone hit him.

Witnesses said the disturbance began when Jack Foster, a union member from Ohio, asked guards at the entrance to the U.A.W.A. office suite to permit more union "visitors" to enter. Addes, standing behind Foster, clashed with Silverman.

Wait in Corridor

Previously, 50 supporters of the suspended officers pushed their way into the headquarters and took up their stand in a corridor outside the room where the trial was to be held.

The board tried Addes a fortnight ago, removed him from office and expelled him from the U. A. W. A. He withdrew from the hearing at which he was tried, along with the other disciplined officers and other Martin opponents when the board denied every request of his counsel.

Those called before the union's bar today were Richard T. Frankensteen, Walter N. Wells, Ed Hall and Wyndham Mortimer.

The friction that has arisen between pro and anti-Martin groups in the U. A. W. A. in recent months has threatened to disrupt the union.

When Martin called the four suspended vice presidents "stooges of the Communist party" they retaliated by saying he was throwing up "a smoke screen to divide, blind and confuse the workers."

At Milwaukee Saturday George Kiebler, district U.A.W. president and lieutenant of Martin, ordered the ouster of all the officers and executive board members of the Allis-Chalmers local, which has been in conflict with the national president since the Addes episode originated.

Kiebler's order was directed, among others, at Harold Christoffel, president of the Allis-Chalmers local, whose offices Kiebler visited a week ago and seized records and treasury accounts Kiebler had been named administrator of the local by Martin.

Praha Government Drafts Program

Expects Liberal Provisions Will Help Solve Minorities Problem

Praha—(AP)—All government departments worked on details of the Czechoslovak government's draft for the nationalities statute tonight in a rush to get it completed.

Premier Milan Hodza was confident he could submit the completed draft tomorrow to leaders of the nazi-supported Sudeten German minority which has been demanding autonomy.

He even was optimistic that the Sudeten Germans would be surprised at the liberality of the government's provisions, authoritative sources said

Professors, judges, cabinet ministers and a parliamentary committee of six had a hand in the work.

Government experts assigned to work out details submitted their drafts to the judges to insure proper legal language and to the university professors for their counsel

Passed that test, each section was hurried to the so-called political ministers of the cabinet, headed by the premier. Those they approved were sent to the parliamentary committee, representing the government coalition parties, for the final okay.

Hodza disclosed he intended to submit the completed draft to the Sudeten Germans tomorrow and to the Hungarian and Polish minorities on the following days

His plan, it was said, was to explain the principles of the proposed statute and answer the minorities' questions without expecting them immediately to commit themselves favorably or otherwise.

Stalin Sees 35,000 in Parade in Red Square

Moscow —(AP)— Thirty-five thousand of the young and strong of soviet Russia marched before their leader, Josef Stalin, Sunday in the annual physical culture pageant in Red square.

The girls, young men, even children, told in pantomime and with huge floats of the arduous duties of red soldiers and border guards, of the nation's guns, tanks and airplanes, and of agricultural fertility.

O'Daniel Wins In Texas Race For Governor

LOSES IN TEXAS

San Antonio, Texas —(AP)— Representative Maury Maverick (above), ardent New Dealer seemingly unseated in Saturday's democratic primary, issued a statement today saying "with the (local political) machine and anti-Roosevelt money they (his opponents) apparently did well."

Paul J. Kilday, an attorney making his first bid for elective office, led Maverick by 475 votes with only a few precincts uncounted in a total vote of more than 45,000 in this congressional district.

Scoffs at Possibility Of Establishing 'Dictatorship'

MAVERICK BEATEN

Sanders Also Loses Congress Seat as Result Of Landslide

Dallas— (AP) —W. Lee O'Daniel, a novice politician who made a shambles of Texas political precedent today assured his public he would be a "regular fellow" as governor and scoffed at the possibility of a dictatorship.

Mired indirectly in the O'Daniel landslide were two potent members of congress, tart-tongued Maury Maverick and Morgan Sanders, who was slated for eventual chairmanship of the powerful house ways and means committee.

The Texas election bureau's latest tabulation today gave O'Daniel 432,502 votes, a clear majority of 19,652 over 11 opponents.

This mild radio flour salesman, who mounted a sound truck with a hillbilly band and struck out after "those professional politicians" long after seasoned foes had started stumping the hinterlands, commented:

Won't Be "Dictator"

"The secret of success in business is ability to cooperate. I think the same principles of business can be applied to government. I have no idea of being a dictator."

Paul J. Kilday, 38-year-old San Antonia attorney backed by Mayor C. K. Quin's political machine, whipped Maverick, New Deal mainstay, by 475 votes.

O'Daniel and Kilday campaigned on pension issues.

So did 25-year-old Lindley Beckworth, a state representative, to crush Sanders.

Gossett in Lead

Attorney Ed Gossett, another old-age pension advocate, led Representative W. D. MacFarlane, who got a warm greeting recently from President Roosevelt in Texas.

Attorney General William A. McCraw, who baited O'Daniel from the stump and ridiculed his plan to have business men sit with the governor in council over proposed legislation, finished a lagging third.

In the second position was Colonel Ernest O. Thompson, railroad commissioner, who advocated lowering of utility rates and general industrialization of Texas. Thompson's latest total was 161,993! McCraw's 107,309.

39 Arabs Killed As Bomb Explodes In Market Place

Between 50 and 60 are Wounded in Second Blast Within Month

Haifa, Palestine — (AP) — A bomb blasted the crowded Arab market place here today for the second time in a month, killing 39 Arabs and wounding between 50 and 60.

The incident was the most costly in the turbulent strife between Jews and Arabs which has been sweeping the Holy Land anew since July 5

It occurred at the same spot where 23 were killed and more than 60 injured July 6 in an explosion and an ensuing street battle.

New racial clashes immediately followed today's blast, which spread panic among the populace. In swift reprisals and counter-reprisals one Jew was shot to death and another Jew and an Arab were wounded.

Police reinforcements were called hurriedly to aid marines and troops in quelling the disturbances.

Many Injured

The explosion occurred as Arab men and women were gathering in the morning at the melon market. The air was filled with the cries of the dying and wounded.

Many were injured as the crowd started throwing stones.

(In the midst of the outbreak in Haifa, 80 American tourists arrived in Jerusalem from Egypt. They had traveled by train from Alexandria where they disembarked from the American Export liner Excambion

(Another party of American tourists was fired upon yesterday by snipers near Athlit, south of Haifa, but no one was hurt. The tourists were from the liner Roma.)

Today's disorders brought total deaths since July 5 to 131. More than 300 have been wounded in the current wave of outbreaks.

RFC Has Disbursed Over 106 Million In State, Duffy Says

Oshkosh —(AP)— The Reconstruction Finance corporation has disbursed more than $106,000,000 in Wisconsin as of July 8, Senator F. Ryan Duffy told the Oshkosh Rotary club today.

Of the $7,000,000,000 total of RFC loans in the nation up to last June 1, the senator said, more than $5,000,000,000 has been repaid.

Senator Duffy declared the RFC "in all probability" would authorize a loan for reopening of the Allen-A hosiery mill at Kenosha to give employment to 600 or 700 persons. He said the RFC had authorized a loan to the Mayville Shoe company which would prevent a layoff of 300 men and permit employment of 75 more men.

Racine Woman Killed, Six Persons Injured

Waukesha — (AP) — Mrs. Elsie I. Christenson, 38, of Racine, was killed and six others were injured yesterday when cars driven by her husband, Earl, and George F. Mitchell of Kennilworth, Ill., collided at the intersection of Highways 83 and 99 near Mukwonago.

Christenson received a hip injury. His daughter, Carroll, 8, suffered injuries to her right leg, and his son, Earl, Jr., 14, was cut and bruised. Mitchell's fin was injured. His passengers, Mr and Mrs. H. L. Cavanaugh of Glencoe, Ill., sustained minor injuries.

Barns Blown Down by Severe Badger Storm

Whitehall, Wis. —(AP)— A severe wind and electrical storm, accompanied by rain and hail, which tore through several north-central Wisconsin counties last night, concentrated some of its heaviest blows in Trempealleau and Jackson counties.

Four barns were blown down, one barn struck by lightning, roofs removed, cattle killed, and buildings moved from foundations in Trempealleau county south of Blair.

Trees were uprooted and farm buildings damaged in Jackson county near Taylor, and lightning ignited the hay barn on the Conrad Negaard farm at Trump Coulee.

Light and power lines were disrupted temporarily by wind in rural Wood county, but no buildings were reported down.

Vice-Gambling Probe Is Asked at Fond du Lac

Fond du Lac —(AP)— Circuit Judge Clayton X. Van Pelt today had the request of the 'Fond du Lac County Citizens' committee" for a grand jury investigation into vice and gambling into the county.

A delegation headed by the Revs Cecil Dawson of Fond du Lac and S. C. Peabody of Ripon told Judge Van Pelt Saturday the committee had been investigating conditions in the county for more than a year, and had affidavits supporting its demand for a grand jury probe.

Judge Van Pelt suggested the committee present its evidence to Governor LaFollette. Thereafter, he said, the proper procedure would be to file a petition with the court.

Phil Urges Parents To Teach Children Native Language

Milwaukee — (AP) — Governor Philip F. LaFollette, speaking at the picnic of the United Croatian societies of Milwaukee county yesterday, advised Croatian parents to teach their children their native language

"They'll learn English fast enough," LaFollette said, "and they'll hear all the swing music and jazz without any effort on your part. So it's up to you to let them hear the Croatian music, too."

The governor declared that by keeping alive the customs, music, art and language of their fatherlands, foreign-born citizens are enriching the national culture.

LaFollette did not talk politics, but discussed national economics. He declared the United States with all its resources cannot "put the blame on heaven" for its present plight.

"If we don't make good," he said, "the responsibility is on our shoulders."

Byllesby License Is Suspended by Bank Commission

Right to Sell Securities to Be Revoked Unless Rehearing Is Granted

Madison—(AP)—The license of the H. M. Byllesby Company, Chicago utilities holding firm, to sell securities in Wisconsin, was suspended today by the state banking commission.

The commission, after investigation, held the company had entered more than $700,000 of unexplained expenditures on its books between 1927 and 1930.

The concern has 30 days to appeal for rehearing. Otherwise its license will be revoked, the commission said

The order followed an investigation by special state counsel into affairs of the bankrupt B. E. Buckman investment firm of Madison. The state attorneys examined the bank accounts of William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the Wisconsin Public Service commission and subsequently brought a complaint against the Byllesby company.

The banking commission held that Byllesby officers made $18,500 of unexplained payments to Dinneen.

Commission's Findings

The commission found:

That the holding company charged off $123,000 in connection with the purchase of the Wisconsin Valley Electric company in 1927 without any satisfactory explanation.

That Treasurer M. A. Morrison between 1927 and 1930 made $106,300 of disbursements without proper bookkeeping entries.

That Halford Erickson, company vice president and former chairman of the old Wisconsin Railroad commission approved $70,000 of unexplained disbursements.

That J. J. O'Brien, while president of the company, receipted checks for $12,500 which was not explained on the books and that other sums of more than $600,000 had been disbursed without proper bookkeeping entries.

Insurgent Troops Busy in West Spain

Clean Up Conquered District After Swift Offensive

Hendaye, France, at the Spanish Frontier —(AP)—Spanish insurgents cleaned up a newly-conquered area of 3,125 square miles in the far west of Spain today after a swift offensive almost on the opposite side of the nation from the main war-front on the Mediterranean coast.

The conquered territory was in Estremadura province, near the Portuguese border, where the government's solid grip on western Spain. Within it are 23 important towns and a population of 400,000.

The five-day campaign, originally started as a feint to draw government troops away from the defense of Valencia, was understood to have surprised even insurgent commanders by its success.

Meanwhile, government militiamen were fighting the insurgent drive on Valencia almost to a standstill in what observers generally considered the main theater of operations.

Unconfirmed insurgent reports said Miaja had ordered the evacuation of Viver, 34 miles northwest of Valencia but government dispatches said "the people's army" had driven off insurgent attacks on the Cruz and San Roque ridges west of the town.

Four insurgent airplanes dropped 40 bombs on the San Blas quarter of Alicante, government-held port on the Mediterranean, wrecking 25 buildings. Five persons were known to have been killed and 40 injured.

Cannon New Member of Staff for Camp Onaway

John Cannon, 1938 Appleton High school graduate, has been added to the staff at Camp Onaway, C. C. Bailey, director, said today. The camp opens Thursday.

Ken Westberg, Lawrence athlete, and William Ogilvie will be unable to serve on the staff during the 2-week session, Bailey reported. Both have accepted other positions.

School Board to Open Fuel, Equipment Bids

Bids on fuel to heat Appleton's public schools during the coming winter will be opened by the board of education at a meeting at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon at Lincoln school. Pay for Work Not Done Is Part of Railroad Problem

Day's Wages Must be Paid For Only 12-Minute Trip Under Ruling

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Perhaps the most acute problem before the nation today is the plight of the railroads.

When the earnings available for interest on all railroads amount to only $19,000,000 out of the $150,000,000 required for the first quarter of this year, when sixty-five railroads fail to earn even taxes or general expenses, and when there is a drop in railroad security values in the last eight years causing a loss to investors of more than $3,000,000,000, something serious has happened.

Lawrence

Likewise, the amount of railroad mileage in the hands of court receivers is the highest in all our history. No single factor is the cause of all this, but a combination of many factors. In an effort to throw some light on the question, this correspondent happened to mention in these dispatches a few weeks ago the railroad wage situation, declaring that an Interstatae Commerce commission report showed "work not done" amounting to many millions of dollars a year.

Promptly the organ of the railroad brotherhoods let loose a torrent of abuse upon the head of the writer, declaring him in the pay of the railroads and that what was written could only be paid propaganda. This, however, is the customary answer of the lobby groups in Washington to anybody who disagrees with them. It's an old, old technique designed to brow-beat or intimidate critics.

Fine Union

The railroad brotherhoods themselves, on the other hand, are a fine union organization, perhaps the finest type of labor union in the world. Admiration for them has been repeatedly expressed in these dispatches. Likewise, as far back as 1922, long before the Wagner act or the present railroad mediation act was passed by congress, this corresponudent was defending the right of collective bargaining by the railroad workers and was disputing the point of view of General Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania, as to the right of workmen to be represented by spokesmen of their own choosing. But basic sympathy for the railroad workers by one correspondent is not important, and it is mentioned only to point out that, in a public relations sense, the agents of the railroad brotherhoods in Washington are about as tactless as some of the steel barons in attempting to exert pressure on newspapers and newspapermen

The only thing that is important is the facts. If a misstatement of fact ever occurs in these dispatches on any important subject, this writer is eager to acknowledge error and to set forth the correction. There's no good reason for not doing it. None of us is infallible, and, in the multitude of questions confronting a Washington writer, it would be phenomenal if occasionally the statistics which he reprints from other sources were not open to question.

Revenue Decline

But what are the facts about "work not done?" Will the railroad brotherhood agent enlighten the public on the phrase as used in the Interstate Commerce commission reports? A discussion of the subject becomes timely because the railroad executives and the railroad brotherhoods now are in the midst of series of conferences on the railroad wage scales and their reduction. Nobody likes to see wage reductions. It is bad economics and bad for a nation's morale. What is more essential is wage equalization, and this correspondent had the temerity last autumn to mention that, in the face of a decline in freight revenues, the railroad brotherhoods were mistaken in forcing a big wage increase, which, in turn, forced out of employment many railroad workers in the lower income groups, though protecting the men with seniority rights.

However this may be, whether John L. Lewis is right in his theory that only a vertical union will protect the men in the lower wage brackets from such tactics, or whether the railroad brotherhoods will develop statesmanship and bring about equalization not only from the point of view of the men but also of the owners of the railroads, this aspect must be subordinated now to a discussion of what is meant by "work not done."

My attention was first attracted to the phrase by an article appearing in the New York Times on May 22 last by Elisha M. Friedman, who, so far as I know, is an independent economist and not connected with railroads. But even if he were, his figures are so startling as to demand an answer. He wrote:

Wage Increases

"The wage increases of $320,000,000 plus payment for work not done of $198,823,140 equals about $20,000,000 which sum is equivalent almost to the annual interest charges of the railroads."

The New York Times editorially commented thus:

"As Elisha M. Friedman points out in a remarkable summary of the railroad situation published on this page today, this situation is intensified by all sorts of technical rulings which result in payment for work not done and employment of unnecessary men. He cites among others the anacheronistic ruling that one hundred miles constitutes a day's work and another ruling that compels a day's pay for a 12-minute trip."

The Times went on to say that "railroad wages are the highest in history," that the average hourly wage is 75 cents, as compared with 71 cents average in manufacturing, and that the 'railroad average is brought down by a large number of moderately paid workers and does not indicate what the aristocrats in the big four brotherhoods are getting."

In justice to the owners of the railroads — life insurance companies, hospitals, universities, colleges, savings banks own 55 per cent and have suffered a loss of $5,000,000,000 owing to shrinkage in valuation—the subject needs discussion. The railroad brotherhoods want no pay cut, irrespective of the economic justification for decreases, and they are supported politically by Mr. Roosevelt, who knows the political power of the railroad unions. The national mediation law provides a machinery for settling labor disputes over railroad wages. The railroad companies are endeavoring to avail themselves of this now for the first time just as the unions have used it always to obtain increases.

Analysis Figures

I have sought to get an expert analysis of the "work not done" figures. The statisticians of the railroads themselves have been studying the question and their findings probably will soon become available. Meanwhile, I have asked the statistical experts of railway age, a trade paper of the railroad equipment industry, for their version of "M-300," which is the report on "work not done" issued by the Interstate Commerce commission. J. G. Lyne, the New York editor for Railway Age, writes me that, in his opinion, the Friedman figures of $198,000,000 may be too high, but that his own reading of the 1937 statistics of the ICC and computation for "work not done" adds up to $140,740,687. Mr. Lyne goes on to analyze these last figures, showing wherein they may be regarded as an understatement or an overstatement and wherein they are subject to a difference of interpretation or opinion. He says:

"All the other figures include some payments which, in small part at least, may have some justification. But this 90 million dollars represent wages paid for at the rate of from $5.50 for brakemen to over $8 a day for an engineman, for which equivalent hours were not put in, you cannot, I think, be successfully attacked by anybody for the use of this figure. And I don't think there could be much doubt about $56,000,000 more (or 10 per cent of the total wages to trainmen and enginemen) representing pay to unnecessary employes required under union rules or 'full-crew' legislation. That gives you a total of $146,000,000 as the cost of union rules in train service alone, 90 millions of which represent ICC statistics and 56 millions an estimate which errs, if at all, on the side of extreme conservatism."

What is the economic answer to this charge of "work not done"? Whether all or a part of it can be justified by an analysis of the ICC statistics is secondary. There's a vast sum involved annually for "work not done" and if the railroad brotherhoods think the ICC is wrong in using this phrase and that it is a myth or a falsehood or if they think the right figure is different from those quoted, this correspondent would like to publish an analysis from the other side.

17 Men Ask for Inspection Job

Applicants Will be Interviewed by Aldermen Wednesday Evening

Harold H. Solomon, 1007 W. Packard street this morning filed his application for the position of building inspector in Appleton, according to Carl J. Becher, city clerk. Seventeen men have filed applications for the job to date.

All of the applicants will be interviewed privately by the common council at an informal meeting at 7:30 Wednesday evening in city hall. A committee of Appleton builders informally will discuss selection of a man for the job at 8:30 the same evening.

The new ordinance, re-creating the position of building inspector, became law after its publication Saturday. Since 1934, when the council adopted an ordinance consolidating the job with that of city engineer, the work has been handled by employes of the engineering department.

Appleton's new building code ordinance, adopted by aldermen about a month ago, will be enforced as soon as a man is selected to fill the position.

New Street Department Official Begins Duties

Eugene F. Harris, 518 W. Spring street, started work this morning as assistant street commissioner and will take over supervision of Appleton's street department.

He will work under the direction of Alfred Wickesberg, city engineer and street commissioner, but will have direct charge of the department. Harris was hired by the city council Wednesday evening after a heated verbal battle among aldermen. The department up to now has been under the direct supervision of the city engineer.

Primary Race for State Offices Is Developing Speed

Plenty of Candidates Offer Themselves for Nomination in September

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — As more candidates appeared over the weekend with declarations of their eagerness to serve the Wisconsin citizenry by accepting public offices, contests for nominations in the party primary elections in September began to develop.

Although the Progressive incumbent state officials, including Treasurer Levitan, Governor LaFollette, Secretary of State Theodore Dammann and Attorney General Orland S. Loomis seem likely to be renominated without opposition, there will be primary battles for the senate and lieutenant governorship nominations.

Probably the most interesting of all the primary campaigns will be between the mild, old-time progressivism of Herman L. Ekern, "Old Bob" LaFollette's pal and trusted assistant, and the radical, tempestuous modern theories of Representative Thomas R. Amlie. Both want to be the Progressive choice for United States senator. The winner will oppose Senator F. Ryan Duffy, who is busy telling Wisconsin that "Roosevelt wants me reelected," and one of the six eager toga aspirants already put forward by the Republican organization.

Contesting for the Progressive nomination for lieutenant governor will be Olaf Johnson of Gratiot, Earl Munson of Cambridge, and George Nelson of Milltown, a Scandinavian trio who will make their race a merry one. Nelson is a Socialist, the nominee of the Farmer-Labor-Progressive federation. In 1936 he ran for vice president with Norman Thomas.

Immell is Out

Two Progressive party developments over the weekend are significant. First is the declaration by Adj. Gen. Ralph M. Immell that he will not be a senate candidate in the Progressive party this year, despite, he says, the importunities of his friends all over the state. Immell, he says, will devote his energies to help Gov. Phil develop the new national Progressive party.

On the Milwaukee front, Socialists threatened ominously to break away from the Progressive party to which they were hitched with the FLPF three years ago, and to run a candidate against Governor La Follette to retaliate for his rough-shod tactics during the last couple of years. Socialists were vexed when their choice for governor, Theodore Dammann, refused to run against the governor. Whether they can actually make good their threats is doubtful. There is little time for the circulation of nomination papers.

While the two old parties are slower in getting their slates of candidates completed, contests are already developing there. James E. Finnegan, former attorney general, wants the Democratic nomination which will also be sought by La-Verne Dilweg of Green Bay. Both will be opposed by the Coalitionists' candidate for that job, John Martin, member of a prominent Brown county family, who will be filed in the Democratic primary, and also in the Republican, where he will oppose nomination of Richard Murray of Marinette, a candidate for the Republican endorsement for attorney general.

Battle of Packers

The attorney general contest offers prospects for an interesting campaign. Two of the bidders are former Packer football stars in Green Bay, Dilweg and Murray.

Discussing the prospect of opposition from such formidable athletes, aides of attorney general Loomis Saturday good naturedly talked about the possibility of getting a little coaching in Packer strategy from some former player, Verne Llewellyn of Green Bay, for example.

The fourth political organization in this year's campaign, still considered a doubtful factor by the regular political managers, is the coalition ticket, headed by Robert K. Henry of Jefferson, who started his speaking campaign Sunday with several appearances. It was conceded in the capital that the addition of former Senator Walter Goodland of Racine, a former legislator of much influence and following, added strength to the Coalition ticket.

Most British Nobles Think Nation Should Pay War Debt to Washington

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York — The ultra-conservative British house of lords, which ordinarily is too proud for common gossip, has kicked over the traces and ventured to discuss with shocking abandon the forbidden subject of England's war-debt to America.

Once blue-blood is heated up it is about the same as any ordinary blood, and the noble lords spoke right out with thoughts which they were not supposed to express, and which some of them even now may regret.

The consensus of nobility was that John Bull ought to pay his bill.

England several years ago stopped making even token payments. So did all the rest owing us war debts, with the exception of little Finland. When Finland's distinguished foreign minister, Dr. Rudolf Holsti, was here recently I asked him why his country persisted in paying its bill to us. He replied simply that it was because Finland had promised to pay.

The debate in lords called attention to the fact that the war-debt controversy had caused friction between Britain and the United States. The speakers might have gone further and said that few previous issues had caused so much resentment in the mind of the man in the street in both countries.

The feeling has been growing in England that the matter has gone far enough, and that there should be an adjustment. The average Briton wants to pay, though he doesn't think he should be asked to pay the whole bill as originally set down.

Appleton Scouts Star in Gardner Dam Track Meet

BY BILLY SPENGLER

Gardner Dam — A complete change of weather, from a cold, rainy Friday to a warm sunny Saturday, made possible an all-camp field day and track meet.

Placing high in all events, the stars of Troop 4, Appleton, ran away with the meet. These athletes included Robert Gillette, Howard Farrand, Wesley Lathram, Eugene Pegel, Evan Pegel, and James Steffen.

First contest, the 100-yard dash, ended in the following manner for Division A: first—Eugene Pegel, Troop 4, Appleton; second—Howard Farrand, Troop 4, Appleton; third—Harold Stumpf, Troop 11, Appleton; fourth, Mike Goehler, Troop 48, Appleton; Division B, for scouts under 14 years of age; first, Evan Pegel, Troop 4, Appleton; second, John Van Rossum, Troop 48, Appleton; third, Tom Hatchell, Kaukauna Troop 31; fourth, Bill Lawson, Troop 3, Neenah.

Pegal Wins Jump

Out of thirty contestants for the broad jump, the following eight scouts leaped the farthest in Classes A and B, respectively. First, Eugene Pegel, Troop 4, Appleton; second, Howard Farrand, Troop 4, Appleton; third, Harold Stumpf, Troop 11, Appleton; fourth, Mike Goehler, Troop 48, Appleton. In the younger group John Van Rossum, Troop 48, Appleton, took first and second place went to Bob Schrimpf of the same troop. Bill Lawson, Troop 3, Neenah, and Bill Soursouras, Troop 3, Neenah, took third and fourth place respectively.

In the third and last event, four-man relay race, again Troop 4 was victorious. With Eugene Pegel, Evan Pegel, Howard Farrand, and Wesley Latham as runners, this Appleton group easily finished first. Second place in Class A was taken by a Troop 48, Appleton, foursome including John Van Rossum, Harold Stumpf, Mike Goehler, and Bob Schrimpf. Two top places in Class B were won, respectively, by Bill Sousouras, Bill Lawson, and Don Quinn, Troop 3, Menasha, and Dick Laemmrich, Menasha Troop 9; and Troop 48, Appleton, with runners Bob Deeg, Bernard Davidson, George Schneider, and Warren Smith.

On Saturday night all the Indian Week campers gathered in the council ring to attend the last campfire of their week of enjoyment at Gardner Dam. Since this was Indian period it was announced that a chief from the nearby reservation would be with them to conduct the opening ceremony, when the redmen in full regalia stepped from the forest, all gasped, but by the time the light of the fire shown on his not-so-red face everyone knew him to be Orville Yingling of Troop 31, Kaukauna.

Great Spirit Guides

During the short invocation that followed the campers were reminded that the Great Spirit had guided them through the week with all safety. The chief stated that if this Great Spirit would remain with them the rest of the summer, he would show his response by mystically lighting a flare, which burst forth as soon as the words were uttered. Perfect timing with a fuse attached to a small amount of firecracker powder did the trick.

Winning patrols in the weekly contests of table and cabin inspections were announced and the prizes made every loser wish he had the week to do over. The prize consisted of a big feed with pie, cake and a swell new flavored drink. Winners in the first mess hall were Kaukauna Troop 31 scouts Bob Bolinski, Bill Van Leishout, Tom Hatchell, Norbert Yingling, John Kramer, Jack Flanagan, Jim Muiholland, and Jack Leddy in table inspection and the Four Fangs patrol with Bud Thomas, Troop 2, Appleton; Bud Trace, Troop 17, Seymour; Junior Cartier, Troop 4, Appleton; and Jim Beers, Troop 120, Shorewood, in cabin care.

Prima Donnas Win

Winners in cabin clean-up in the second mess hall were the scouts of the Heap Big Prima Donna patrol, consisting of Jerry Driscoll, Bill Frawley, Tom Frawley, and Bud Treiber, Troop 13, Appleton, and Jim LaViolette, Leon Pelishek, Bob Pelishek, and Charles Gretzinger, Troop 21, Clintonville. For keeping the neatest table during the week the Running Water patrol, with Harold Stump, Troop 11; Warren Smith and Bob Schrimpf, Troop 25; and Robert Deeg, Bernard Davidson, Mike Goehler, John Van Rossum and George Schneider, got the feed.

When all campers were asleep, initiation into The Links, Gardner Dam's secret order, took place. Following are those accepted because of outstanding camping: Donald Stoffel and scoutmaster Ivan Stone, Troop 5, Appleton; Don Rohrer, assistant at Troop 21, Clintonville; Don Quinn, Troop 3, Neenah; Don Garrigan and Tom Kolasinski, Troop 9, Menasha; Jack Flanagan and John Kramer, Troop 31, Kaukauna; Bud Trace, Seymour Troop 17; Junior Cartier, Troop 4, Appleton; and Glen Vandehey, Troop 31, Kaukauna.

Rebidding May Cause Confusion

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Will you kindly illustrate in your column the difference between the following two bidding situations:

(A)		(B)
South	North	South	North
1 spade	2 diam's	1 spade	2 diam's
3 spades	?	4 spades	?

"I am continually running into difficulties whenever, as South, I must choose between the two rebids noted. Also, when I am the responder in the two situations, I never am sure just what I should do. Is the four spade rebid in (B) stronger or weaker than the three spade rebid in (A)?

"Yours truly,
"Mrs. J. C. F., Toronto."

The situations that require choice between the two rebids noted above create confusion among experts as well as average players. Let us try to throw light on the matter by analyzing the following hand:

South, dealer,
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 6
♥ 10 9 5
♦ A J 8 4 3 2
♣ 8 6 5

WEST
♠ Q 4 3
♥ A K 7 3
♦ 9
♣ K 9 7 4 2

EAST
♠ J 10
♥ Q J 6 4 2
♦ Q 10 5
♣ J 10 3

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 8 7 5 2
♥ 8
♦ K 7 6
♣ A Q

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

This bidding is correct. South had an excellent hand to begin with, and it was improved decidedly when North's two diamond response was made. It is this latter feature that must be appreciated. If North's response had been two hearts, South's proper rebid would be, not four spades, but three spades. A two heart response would not justify South in feeling that game in spades was virtually assured. He would have to recognize the danger of losing one, or possibly two, trump tricks and, with no assurance of a diamond or club fit, would be unable to count his losers. The diamond response changes this radically. Now, although the spade (trump) situation remains the same, i. e., South still may lose two tricks he is quite warranted in feeling that, if this bad break materializes, he still will have an excellent chance to lose only one trick in the other suits.

Generally speaking, there is this difference between the two rebids mentioned by my corrspondnt. In sequence (A) South's rebid requires five honor tricks if the spade suit is no better than A K x x x; four to four and one-half if there is an extra trump, and only three and one-half honor tricks if there are two extra trumps. A single jump rebid, as in this sequence, is not an absolute force, but responder is expected to bid again with about one-plus honor tricks, or with a singleton and two or three trumps, unless he already has strained to make his first response. Since this single jump rebid is not absolutely forcing, and may result in a contract for only three odd, it follows as a matter of pure logic that a triple jump rebid, as in sequence (B), must be stronger. Moreover, a triple jump rebid requires, aside from other considerations, a trump suit that can stand entirely on its own feet, requiring no support from partner.

In the illustrative hand, it will be seen that if South were to rebid only three spades over North's two diamonds, North would have a very difficult problem on his hands. Undoubtedly he would reason that he had already strained to make his original response, and it would require great optimism on his part to respond again. Thus, a virtually lay-down game would be lost if South failed to jump all the way to game.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

The bindweed or wild morning-glory is a pest in gardens in many sections of the country. The plants make a rank growth and the twining leafy stems are likely to smother all other vegetation. Attempts to destroy the vine by pulling it up are in vain for the wide-spreading underground runners soon send up new stems. The best method of eradication is to spade the ground deeply, bringing the underground parts of the plant to the surface, and the sun will do the rest. It is to be remembered that each bit of root-stock left in the soil is capable of starting a new plant, but with the main parts gone it is not very enthusiastic about it and is easily discouraged by the hoe. Or the whole plant may be dug up with one thrust of the shovel. One or two more assaults in a week or two will usually complete the eradication.

Parents Visiting Children Often Upset Camp Routine

BY ANGELO PATRI

A visit to the camp where the children are staying for the summer is a plesant duty that parents look forward to each season. The Director does not always look forward as happily, however, to that visit. He hopes mother will not come until Junior has settled down. It is his first season and his first prolonged absense from home. If mother comes on Sunday, three days after opening, Junior will be torn between two loves. If mother really wants Junior to be with her, the end is in sight. Junior will cry; mother will soothe him and explain to the Director, "You see he is so young, yet. Maybe next year." But the Director knows better. He knows that just one more good boy has been spoiled.

The Director hopes against hope that the visiting parents will not come laden with provisions enough to lift a siege. Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Mother remembers how Son loves chocolate brownies and bakes enough for the "tent." Also how he likes gum-drops, chewing gum, doughnuts, fruit cake, cheese in tins, also sandwiches in the making. "Boys do enjoy a midnight steal, you know."

The Dirececor does know. He knows too, that his job is to undo ten months of mistaken eating, poor routine, self-indulgence of all sorts and send home a sturdy, handsome child, clear - skinned, clear-eyed, candid looking and bronzed, something like the Apollo of the museum of Rome. And he wonders how he is going to get hold of this consignment of food without hurting anybody's feelings, and saving his own skin.

Few campers settle into their stride before the end of the first ten days. Experienced campers are set at the end of a week and going strong, but the beginners take more time. The time schedule is new to the child's body, and it must become adjusted to the new rhythm before the camper can be at ease. To set this healthy rhythm, absolute regularity, no exceptions, is the rule. Hours are rigidly observed, and infractions of the code are noted and disapproved severely in all good camps.

Then along comes mother rarely is it father, but he does appear in this role now and then. "I'd like to take Son to the village tonight. There's a show on at the hotel and I know he would enjoy it so much." That would shatter the work of days. If the Director is the right sort he says NO, firmly — regretfully perhaps, but firmly, NO.

One lady made such a request and when the Director said, "I'm sorry, but the regulations are that no camper leaves the grounds except on camp business, with his group and Counsellor, and never to any hotel entertainment."

"All right. I'll take him home with me. I didn't know he was going to jail," said mother.

When the news was told to Son his eyes opened wide in dismay. "Go home? Who said so? Did my father say so? Mother? Why? Say, you just tell her I said I was staying. I came here just to forget that stuff. And you can't find me, understand, when you come back to get me. I don't want to be bothered. Please make her understand."

Don't bother the children, or the Directors, or the rules committee. Camping is a serious, educational experience and needs to be left perfect its work. Be a cooperative visitor or stay away.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Narrowing of Desires Is Age Compensation

BY DOROTHY DIX

"Like all other women I feared age more than any other calamity that might befall me," said an elderly woman the other day. "I looked forward to my seventies as to being exiled into an arid desert in which there would be no wellspring of pleasure, no prospect to interest me, no green thing to comfort me, and where all I could do would be just to sit and fold my hands and wait for death to end my misery.

DOROTHY DIX

"But now that I have reached the age that I dreaded so much I find that all my apprehensions were groundless and that age, instead of being the worst time of life, is almost its best. True, it lacks the glamour and excitement of youth, but it has the peace that passes understanding.

"I used to be one of the anxious women, fretting about many things, beating myself up against the walls of circumstances that I could not break down. Now I have ceased worrying because I have found out that so many things that I once thought important are not important at all.

"I can remember when I ate my heart out with anxiety wondering if I would be popular at a ball; when I agonized over not having a dress as fine as some other girl's; when I felt that the world would stop if I did not get my housecleaning done at the proper time, and that it was a tragedy if a servant blundered in serving a dinner. But I know now that all of these things were of no consequence whatever, and I have passed into the serenity that comes from not caring about little things.

"Then now I am beyond all envy. One of the compensations of age is that it narrows down our desires. We are satisfied with less and less every year. Once I craved power and place and all the things that money buys—fine clothes and houses and furs and jewels.

"Now I am satisfied with just ordinary creature comforts, and when my children and grandchildren ask me what I want for a birthday or Christmas present I am hard put to think of anything I really wish for. I have the home I love, food I like, my chair by the fire, my books, my old friends, the pleasures that I still enjoy, and I am content. And when I read of the women who are doing great things in public life and giving grand parties I thank Heaven it is they and not I.

"Then I've quit borrowing trouble. I've learned to trust life and know that it never quite lets you down. There is always a tomorrow and the sun rises after the blackest night.

"That is the secret of happiness that takes years of living to find out. Youth does not know it. It doesn't know that what Fate takes from you with one hand it gives back with the other. It doesn't know that nothing lasts, neither joy or sorrow, and that if no pleasure is quite as keen as we thought it would be, neither is any trouble so bitter.

"It is youth that suffers. Not age. It is youth that is filled with despair. Not age. It is youth that beats upon its breast and cries out that this is the end of things if it is balked in its ambitions or desires. We old one take our disappointments calmly because we know from long experience that if we can't do what we want to do at the moment, something better comes along after a bit, and we have seen so often that the thing we had set our hearts upon would have been our undoing if we had got it.

"Then by the time you are 70 you have acquired a philosophy of life. You have learned how to take it and like it, as the slang phrase goes, no matter what it brings you. You have learned how to make the best of things and you have quit kicking against the obstacles which only bruise your own shins and get you nowhere. You have learned how to get along with people, how to walk around their angles instead of bumping into them. You have learned to take the things you enjoy and leave the balance. And you have learned, most of all, to find your happiness in yourself.

"And age furnishes you with the great and unassailable alibi. It gives you the best excuse coming and going that has ever been devised for doing what you want to do and leaving undone what you don't want to do. I, for instance, am too old to play nursemaid to my grandchildren, but I am young enough to belong to clubs and go to parties. And so when I think of the advantages I enjoy, I wonder that anybody should pity age. It has so many more privileges than youth."

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

PLEASE MR. PAPER HANGER

This is not an answer to a letter, but something I want to remind you not to overlook if you are going to have the walls of lived-in-rooms either repapered or painted. Unless you put up signs on every wall reading "Don't remove picture nails" the result will be ----- ! Well, do you remember that the heavy mirror had to be hung on hooks driven into wood pegs fitted into the plaster and securely nailed to the studs? And do you remember the hours it took you or John, or both of you together, to measure and hang — and days later to take down and rehang to better advantage — your collection of prints or whatever other personal belongs on the walls of your living-room mean "home" to you?

Very well then, if you remember, let us now talk about today, when you have decided that the shabby furniture covering must be renewed, and that the walls between the many pictures look very shabby too. So let us say you have decided on the color for the paint or that you have chosen a new paper. The painter (or the paper hanger) arrives. You turn the room over to him and let him alone. Presently he gives it back to you with four beautiful new walls. Happily you push the furniture out of its huddle in the middle of the floor, back to where it belongs. Then you carry a picture to its place and find its hook gone. With a feeling of unreasoning resentment you realize there is not a hook anywhere, and that instead of having all of your pictures hung in a few minutes it is going to be a matter of hours! And all over again, beginning with calling in the carpenter to hang the mirror, you set yourself the infuriating—because needless—task of remeasuring and realligning all those hooks.

So to you, Mr. Paper Hanger, may I ask you, whoever you are, before you start pulling out every nail and hook in the family's sitting-room, won't you at least ask the owners if the want you to leave the hooks, or whether they don't? I agree, Mr. Paper Hanger, even before you answer, that protruding objects, even headless wire nails, add irritating moments to your "job" but only moments! On the other hand, should the walls be painted, not even perceptible seconds would be added by letting your brush strokes include any number of screws or nails.

When the Stair Carpet Grows Shabby

Dear Mrs. Post: The shabby appearance of my stair carpet disturbs me, and I can not get a new one. It is on a circular stair and the carpet was cut across the back of each step, so it can not be turned. It is all in very good condition except at the edge of each step where the velvet is worn off and leaves a streak of the ugliest bare canvas. A friend of mine says she remembers you wrote something about this somewhere, but she can't remember what you advised.

Answer: I did write once in this column that I colored the bare stairs with an ordinary colored canvas on the edge of my own pencil. The result was surprisingly good, but the color gradually brushed off. So then I painted the canvas with oil paint, and its worn streaks were camouflaged so well that it was perfectly usable for five years longer.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

The little lady was once lily white, but Old Sol has done his work.

Vacation days can be days of agony if you persist in getting a sunburn despite all the warnings written and spoken which have been given you!

All of us want to tan but not blister. Yet some of us take no precautions and aftain a whole winter of sun starvation, we bare our skins to the intense rays of summer sun and expect only health and a glowing, becoming change of color! Some get a change of color, and what a color!

Let me stress again that you get trustworthy help from the better sun preparations — so use some sense and buy one before you start for your holiday.

But If You Burn

For the unfortunates who get a burn, a serious one, I write this column. Heed it and prevent skin infection or other serious effects.

There is probably nothing better than plain olive oil to relieve ordinary cases of sunburn. Cocoa-butter applied generously is also good. Then there are several most efficacious preparations to soothe sunburn which you may purchase at a good drugstore or department store cosmetic counter.

For either ordinary or extreme cases of sunburn—if your skin is red and inflamed—postpone the use of soap and water for at least six hours, twelve if possible.

When you return indoors immediately oil your skin generously. Wear white cotton clothes — avoid dyed clothes—or wrap yourself up in bath towels. Do not drink iced drinks. Relax, and cover your eyes with cotton pads wrung out of chilled witch hazel.

For extreme burns, when the person gets chills, one of the best treatments is the use of cold wet compresses after oiling the skin. To prevent the compresses from becoming dry, alternate frequently. Towels wrung out of iced water are easiest to handle but you may use rubber ice bags. If a patient shudders visibly while he is having a chill it is best to call a physician.

After such a burn do not bathe in water for three days. Keep in the shade and keep your skin well covered with oil. Avoid talcum powder. Some medicated powders are good, but unless you know their names use only oil.

Whenever you go out in the sun after a severe burn keep your head well covered.

The Life of John Muir

I—BOYHOOD DAYS

A few weeks ago, while writing about John Muir's clocks, I said we might later have the life story of that famous man. There is special reason to speak about him, for this year marks the hundredth anniversary of his birth. Yet there is so much to tell that his life would be interesting in any year.

John Muir galloping on his pony.

John Muir was born in Scotland in 1838, and spent the first 11 years of his life near Dunbar. A noted castle once stood at Dunbar, and little John liked to explore its ruins. Later he wrote:

"We tried to see who could climb highest on the castle's crumbing peaks.

"I was proud of my skill. When I first heard of hell from a servant girl, I insisted I could climb out of it. I imagined it was only a sooty pit with stone walls like those of the castle."

At school John was most interested in Nature stories in his school reading books. One evening Mr. Muir said to him, "You needn't learn your lessons tonight. We're going to America in the morning!"

The father must have thought about the plan a long while, but he did not tell his children about it until he was almost ready to start. The next day a railway train took four of the Muirs to Glasgow, the father and three of his children — David, Sarah and John. The rest of the family were to follow after a home was built for them in the New World.

For six exciting weeks, the Muir boys watched the sea and the sailors. Thirteen-year-old Sarah was seasick in rough weather, but her brothers were well all the time.

Mr. Muir was not sure where he would settle until he reached Buffalo. There he talked with a grain-dealer who showed him some fine wheat grown in Wisconsin. That made him decide to spend his life in the Badger state.

A farmer hauled the Muirs and their baggage about 100 miles from Milwaukee to a spot near Portage. A shack was quickly set up to serve as a shelter until a good-sized house could be built. Then the long slow work of clearing the land was started.

It was a great event when Mr. Muir bought an Indian pony for his children. Mounting the pony, John urged him forward and soon was galloping bareback. After going a quarter of a mile, he shouted, "Whoa!" The pony stopped so suddenly that the boy went flying over his head. Happily no bones were broken. John got on the pony again and galloped back.

My Neighbor Says—

Grapes should never be picked until they are fully ripe. There is no other fruit of which this is so emphatically true, since grapes do not improve at all after they are picked from the vines.

If a little shredded coconut is sprinkled over any plain pudding it will give it the appearance of a rich dessert.

Grease in wash material should readily yield to soap and moderately hot water. Persistent traces will have to be bleached with javelle water.

When making small cakes or buns, flour the tins well instead of greasing them. The cakes will never stick to the tin.

PWA Votes $36,000 To Clean Up River

Nekoosa Gets Help From Government to Build Disposal Plant

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Continuing its cooperation with the Wisconsin state board of health in cleaning up the Wisconsin river, the public works administration has granted $36,000 to Nekoosa, in Wood county, for an extension and improvement of the sewage treatment works, an intercepting sewer, a storm sewer, and a complete sewage treatment plant, to cost $80,000.

The present sewerage works discharge directly into the Wisconsin river, PWA officials said, and "the construction of this project will promote the standard of health of this community and others downstream from it."

The PWA has also recently made the following grants for sewage treatment systems to help eliminate pollution of the Wisconsin river, in accordance with state health board plans:

$41,220 for a $91,699 sewage treatment plant at Wisconsin Dells;

$603,000 for a $1,340,000 sewage disposal system at Wausau;

What's New at the Library

Some of the principal problems in the world today, namely the Jewish race in a new era of persecution, the decline of Christian idealism, the retreat of democracy before the driving efficiency of autocratic powers, are discussed by Philip Gibbs in a new book entitled "Across the Frontiers," which arrived at Appleton public library last week. The author deals with these problems and shows how the clash of ideas is dividing the human tribes into hostile camps, preventing the use of reason or the compromise of common sense, and creating great danger of war and revolution. He tells the story of the League of Nations and its failure to fulfill the hopes of the idealists with their faith in a code of justice and collective security. Gibbs states his own views as well as those of others. However the book is not pessimistic, for he believes that the rulers of Europe are becoming fearful of this drift to No Man's Land and are anxious to ease the tension and their own risks.

* * *

Another volume dealing with the present European scene is "Unto Caesar" by F. A. Voigt. The modern "secular religions," as the author calls Marxism and National Socialism, are described and their development analyzed step by step to impart an understanding of the changes and shifting alignments in Europe today and the theories motivating the Russian and German experiments. Their similarities are noted the emphasis then shifts to the personalities involved, namely, Lenin, Stalin, Mussolini and Hitler. The author analyzes Hitler's Jewish myth and he discusses armaments, sanctions the Spanish war and other phases of the international situation, and also examines the Treaty of Versailles. The author is foreign affairs editor of the Manchester Guardian, and as a foreign correspondent he lived in Germany, Russia, the Ruhr and Turkey. His reporting brought him twice to arrest, once almost to lynching and once almost to execution.

Fulfilling a childhood ambition to visit the Black Forest after reading Grimm's "Fairy Tales," Helen Follett gives an account of her visit in a book entitled "Third Class Ticket to Heaven." Going from New York to the village of Hinterzarten in the Black Forest, just beyond a little town called the Kingdom of Heaven reached by way of Hell's Valley, the author lived in a cowshed for a while and later moved into the hills to Dream Cottage which she rented from a poetic noodle-merchant in Freiburg. She worked in the fields to become acquainted with her peasant neighbors and she shared with them their merrymaking at village festivals and weddings and the hospitality of their family life.

"A New Deal for Youth" by Betty and Ernest K. Lindley is the story of the National Youth administration. In answer to the questions, What to do with 155,000 boys and girls out of school and out of work, What to do with 327,000 college and high school students on the verge of pauperism, How to get the young people back to school, the United States government three years ago established the NYA. Mr Lindley, a journalist, and his wife lived for months in the closest contact with NYA. They saw buildings rising in Oklahoma, hospitals staffed in New Orleans, furniture shops humming in Kentucky, new bridges, playgrounds, clothes and homes. They talked with the girls and boys, supervisors and townspeople where NYA was in operation and found that youth everywhere was not only being given tools but being taught how to use them.

The conflict between labor and capital which has reached unprecedented proportions during the last two years is discussed from two different angles in "Civil Liberties and Industrial Conflict" by Roger N. Baldwin and Clarence B. Randall. The two men express widely divergent views, but both declare that the historic civil liberties of the American people must be maintained. In the volume are discussed Roosevelt's second election, the National Labor Relations act, Fascism and Communism, collective bargaining, the C.I.O. and A.F. of L., sit-down strikes and picketing.

"A Day of Battle" by Vincent Sheehan, one of the Literary Guild selections for August, has just arrived at the library. It is a novel about the battle of Fontenoy in Flanders between the French and English in 1745 and the action takes place within one day. The whole period is presented through cutbacks in the lives of the characters, and there are pictures of Mme Lenormant d'Etoiles, later to be known as the Marquise de Pompadour, also Voltaire and Louis XV.

Illustrations by H. T. Webster of "Feller-needs-a-friend" fame add considerably to the effectiveness of "The Shepper - Newfounder" by Stewart Edward White which is a story of a boy and his dog. Jimmy encounters the dog one day as he is going home from caddying at a nearby golf course, and the two adopt each other.

Tobacco growers know "inside" reasons for preferring Camels

These planters tell what they know about Camel's finer, more expensive tobaccos

"At the warehouse sales," says Leon Mullen, experienced planter, "Camel buys the choice grades of tobacco. That's the reason why most of us men who grow and know tobacco smoke Camel cigarettes. We certainly appreciate the difference in the tobacco Camel buys."

"Almost every one of my fine baskets of tobacco went to Camel buyers last year," says G. A. Langley, who knows tobacco growing from every angle. "Better tobaccos mean better smoking," he adds. "That means Camels to me—and to most other growers too."

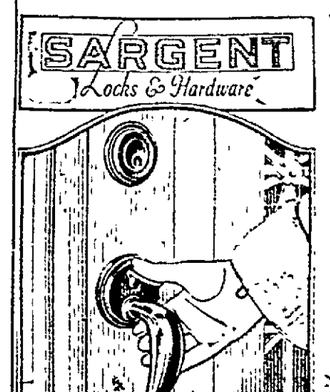

Alton Barnes, a planter who has grown and graded many a fine crop, says this about Camels: "Year after year the choicest lots of my tobacco have gone to the Camel buyers. Naturally, we growers select the best tobacco for our own smoking. So we choose Camels."

"I know from experience that Camel buys choice tobaccos," says Mr. Cecil Claybourne, veteran planter. "Many's the time they've paid more to get my finest lots of tobacco. Yes, most of us planters smoke Camels. We sure find a difference in their finer tobaccos."

ARROGANCE IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

A man must feel that he has discovered and perfected a system that is unbeatable to talk like Harry Hopkins who recently said:

> "There are three million persons on our rolls, and I think I know how these workers feel about politics. Ninety per cent of them support the Roosevelt administration . . . People vote according to their interests."

Mr. Hopkins is becoming arrogant. He concludes that enough people may be kept on public relief to decide elections and thus become increasingly important as the balance of power.

But it is not altogether sure by any means that Mr. Hopkins and his willing friends in polluting the republic are not out on a brittle limb. The conclusion that only 10 per cent of reliefers do any downright genuine thinking is far from sure. Mr. Hopkins' expectation that these millions of workers, and those dependent upon them, are willing to adopt their present positions as a lasting profession and bid goodbye to independence and self-sufficiency is concluding that men want peonage, and that slavery of a sort is attractive. That parallels with the ante-bellum argument of the old South to the effect that the black man didn't want to be free and just loved a situation in which he was pretty sure of some of the essentials of life although hope and ambition, and all the radiant colors of a future, were to be denied. Those upon Mr. Hopkins' rolls, and subject to his whims and aches, his bright mornings and his sleepless nights, may want to trade their present position, dangling on a political string, for a full job at expanded wages and no questions asked concerning their votes or their rights to openly express opinions.

We have had a great many men in our political life who became as cocksure as Harry Hopkins. There was Bishop Cannon for one. Figuring he was in a unassailable position he used to lay down the law as his store teeth snapped fire. But in time his power crumbled, his influence vanished completely, and he was happy to fall back upon arthritis as a principal defense to a jury finding him guilty of fraud.

Arrogance is only another form of pride and "goeth before the fall."

MR. HULL TAKES MEXICO TO TASK

At long last the government of the United States has filed with Mexico the objection that, had it filed at the first sign of socialistic larceny might have saved a lot of trouble and prevented the Mexicans themselves from sinking even lower into the bottomless pit specially reserved for those who support confiscation on a national scale.

Mr. Hull's protest makes no reference to the oil companies. They are still shambling their way through Mexican red tape in defending the position that the government has not expropriated the property, which it had a right to do, but has confiscated it, which it had no right to do, the distinction existing entirely in the failure of the government to make any offer of payment, and, in fact, in the absence upon the part of the government of any intention of ever paying.

But Mr. Hull says that it is time the two governments arbitrated payment by Mexico to American farmers for the loss of their lands, most of them quietly taken over and the Americans merely pushed off, and without mention of the $10,000,000 claimed as their total value

Mr. Hull recalls that Mexico has delayed payment in these cases from year to year because busy with its "program for the social betterment of the masses," and our Secretary says that such a program is entirely unrelated to the issue between the two governments. The only issue of course, is whether Americans can be stood up and robbed in broad daylight with the only statement "We will pay you in the sweet bye and bye."

It is going to be a very rude awakening to Cardenas' dream that the Neighborly Policy does not always mean that Americans can be stripped unceremoniously. But it will be of advantage to the poor, poverty stricken Mexicans who cannot and will not run a farm to be given back their American bosses who at least saw to it that they had food and clothing and more money than any socialist state ever gave them.

Washington only moved, however, because Mexico went too far and there were indications that other Latin American countries were taking the hint and preparing to follow the example. There is also good reason to believe that the Roosevelt administration has finally become at least partially convinced, if not wholly so, that every time Mexico confiscated American property the Mexicans, though they became virtual owners of that property, sank lower and lower economically. It is no disparagement of Mexicans to merely assert the truth about them. A percentage, an alarmingly high percentage of these people, revert to the jungle the moment the white man lets go directing their farms and business affairs, and therefore setting them an example and holding them to a standard of living at least bordering upon civilization.

Otherwise the landscape becomes a desolation. Their huts have only doors. They remain unpainted and unimproved. Their fields see a war against weeds only to the extent made necessary by the individual farmer in order to pluck out enough for his own sustainance.

Perhaps America should stay out of Mexico entirely. But it is wrong for Mexico to invite America in and succeed in enticing thousands of men with millions of dollars and then rolling them for what they've got.

PAPER POLICIES

At first thought the threat of southern competition to Wisconsin supremacy in the paper industry would seem to be solely the problem of the paper mills themselves.

Anything but superficial consideration of the situation, however, will reveal that Wisconsin itself, its people and its cities, would be the greatest sufferers should the paper industry pack up and move to southern states.

Such a migration today seems improbable, but the fact must be recognized that southern states have much to offer paper manufacturers, cheap timber available as yet in goodly amounts, tax concessions, easy access to water transportation, and such minor but important factors as no heating problems and cheap natural gas fuel.

It is true that at the present time paper manufacturing in the south has proved profitable only in certain lines which do not conflict too much with Wisconsin interests, but who will say that technological improvements can not be made which will make southern mills capable of producing any kind of paper in competition with the north?

The two big factors as the paper mills see it are the supply of cheap pulpwood and taxation. Wisconsin timber is well-nigh exhausted and Canadian wood can be imported only by mills fortunately situated on Great Lakes water routes, such as the mills in the Fox River Valley. Everyone knows that taxation of industry in Wisconsin is a serious problem.

The current national political set-up is also conducive to building up the southern paper industry. It has been a constant cry of the New Deal that southern industry and agriculture is most in need of reconstruction, and federal loans have been granted toward that end.

New Deal policies have also been discriminatory against Middle Western industry and agriculture in favor of southern industry and agriculture, and discriminatory against established industry in favor of new industry.

The two big problems of Wisconsin paper manufacturers, reforestation and non-confiscatory taxes, are both statewide problems.

They must be considered by state and local governments in conjunction with the paper mills. If they are left to the paper mills to solve by themselves, with an appropriate shrug of the shoulders, we may find our beneficial paper industry silently folding its tents and vanishing into the south

BRIDE'S CAKE

"It takes a light heart," Grandma used to say,
"To stir up a light cake!" And Dorothy
Has such good luck with baking! When today
I called upon her, pure felicity
Flooded the little house. . . . She poured the tea,
And passed the cake, made with her mother's art,
And just as light and sweet as her young heart!

JUSTICE IN WISCONSIN

Thomas M. Duncan, big shot in the La Follette organization, has escaped the penitentiary. The Wisconsin Supreme court has decided it cannot interfere in his case.

Duncan, formerly executive secretary to Gov. La Follette, killed a citizen of Milwaukee last March. At the time, Duncan was drunk and driving a car at high speed in the city. He didn't stop after the accident and it was only when he had been arrested as a drunken motorist that he was identified as the hit and run driver. He was charged with manslaughter. The defense objected to the Milwaukee judge to whom the case was assigned, and Judge Gullick N. Risjord was called from out of town to try the case without a jury.

Judge Risjord found Duncan guilty of first degree manslaughter, a crime for which the penalty is a term of no less than five years nor more than ten in the penitentiary. Having reached that conclusion, the judge refused to act upon it. He sentenced Duncan on a charge of fourth degree manslaughter to a term of one to two years in the Milwaukee jail.

District Attorney Steffes of Milwaukee asked the Wisconsin Supreme court for permission to mandamus the judge to sentence the prisoner for the crime of which he had been found guilty. The court has now declared it has no authority to intervene.

It may be assumed that the court has interpreted the law correctly, but its finding cannot be regarded as approval of the conduct of the trial judge. Duncan was guilty of a foul crime; the judge acknowledged as much, and, having acknowledged it, gave him a sentence far lighter than the law imposes and justice demands. Since sentence was passed, Wisconsin's boast regarding the quality of criminal justice in that jurisdiction has had a hollow ring.—Chicago Tribune.

Dale Harrison's In Old New York

New York—Buster B—has written me from his sickbed in a hospital out west. He wants me to send him a dime. He wants everybody to send him a dime. When he gets a lot of dimes they will pay for nurses and an operation.

Buster figures that "if the President can start a march of dimes to the White House," Buster can start a "March a dime to Buster."

He says: "They send money to China, Japan and for floods and earthquakes. They need it. So do I."

"I realize that this is nothing but plain bumming," Buster adds with surprising frankness, "but I can't get out and make money like you can."

Buster winds up a rather long letter thusly:

"If you don't think this idea is any good, let me know. I'll still read your column, and I'll take your advice. You look like a good sport, and I think you can advise me."

I'm taking you up on that, Buster. Not that I could or would give you or anyone else advice. What I want is to tell you I'm not going to send you a dime, and the reason. It's worth writing a column about because, you see, there are a great many others who in their apparent desperation are forever figuring ways to launch a "march of dimes" to themselves.

I don't care about them. It is the people who send the dimes who worry me. You see, pal, there are probably a million Americans who, if properly propagandized, would send you a dime apiece We Americans are pushovers for the tremolo spot. And that isn't a healthy thing for a nation.

* * *

There actually is no reason in the world why perfect strangers should send you anything. Sure, you're sick. Sure, you could use the dough. But are you the only one? Don't you suppose that the very persons whose sympathy might influence them to contribute to your need have equally worthy outlets for their dimes just around the corner—or even in their own family circle?

Don't you see, Buster boy, that it really is "plain bumming," like you say? and that being a bum is worse than being broke?

They're taking care of you out there. For two years and two months you have lain in bed, and they've taken care of you. It didn't take a "March of Dimes" either. You were sick. They took you in. Your money gave out—but they're still taking care of you That's routine in America, Buster.

Sure, I know: you figure that with more dough you would get better medical care and better nursing. You figure that the doctors and nurses don't get their hearts into a case unless there's dough in sight. That's apple-sauce and baloney. Doctors and nurses work at their jobs just like everybody else. When you were playing in an orchestra you played just as good as you could. If you'd been paid a thousand dollars a note, they wouldn't have been any sweeter.

It isn't dimes you want, really, kid. You're young. Twenty-nine is young. You've been bedridden a long time. You face an equally long siege. You're getting impatient. You are beginning to begrudge aid given to anyone but you—"China, Japan, floods and earthquakes." It's a form of self-pity. Self-pity is bad business. You're lonesome—"no mama, no papa," is the way you wrote it. I can tell you how to whip that problem, kid, and it won't cost a dime. Read. Listen to good music—good music. Dream. Live in your mind a life such as none of us can ever live in reality.

* * *

A March of Dimes? To Hell with that! You know it as well as I do. It's cheap chiselling. Get yourself a philosophy; something you can hang onto, something with permanence. Once you are able to place yourself properly in a world in which there are so many hundred millions of other living people—each one of whom has just as earnest a need (they think) for a March of Dimes—or Friendship, or Succor from oppression, or Release from suffocating sorrow—you will feel better.

It's the answer, fellow; and it doesn't cost a dime.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The mechanism by which Germany has been able to float her South and Central American trade to rising levels was spotlighted in her recent interchange with Brazil which resulted in a temporary suspension of their trading.

Grover

In order to build up her foreign trade as a means of bringing home much needed raw products as well as cash, Germany hit on a system of barter out of which developed a trade currency amounting to an indirect subsidy of her exports. The currency with which this trade is carried on is commonly called the "compensation mark" or "askimark."

Its value in the South and Central American trade varies in the different countries, varies from day to day and even from purchase to purchase, but averages around 20 per cent below the reichsmark. Since this devalued currency is accepted by Germany at face value for purchase of German goods, it permits South Americans to buy German goods at about 20 per cent below the quoted price.

Because U. S. currency also has been devalued, U. S. merchants could not legitimately kick at this German "devaluation" if it were on a firm basis. But askimarks wobble in value up and down until Yankee traders are at their wits end to compete for trade against it.

They Sell, But Must Buy

For several years Germany has gained steadily, some of it outright new business, some at the expense of the U. S. traders, although evidently little, and a greater amount at the expense of England. (Steady as was the German gain, however, the United States exceeded it in 1937.)

When Germany pays for South American goods in askimarks, South American countries in return can buy German goods with them. But sufficiently unusual trade terms have been imposed by Germany that several American countries have expressed distaste for the exchange, advantageous though it is for them to have an outlet for their raw products.

To a degree it straitjackets their trade so that when they sell to Germany they must also buy an equal amount, a condition leaving them subject to German trading whims. That is made especially acute because Germany ordinarily buys faster then she delivers, leaving the South Americans with an excess of askimarks. Brazilian banks holding a surplus of askimarks often have to sell them at a loss.

While Germany pays altogether with askimarks, she sometimes requires the South American republics to pay in "free currency," that is, regular exchange, for certain German commodities, such as steel products.

U. S. In Ascendant

To worm out of some of these disadvantages, Brazil was steadily shrinking its holdings of askimarks when Germany abruptly suspended purchases.

During this time the U. S. also has been active. In 1935 a reciprocal trade treaty was concluded with Brazil. Further, U. S. prices fell late in 1937, giving Yankee dealers a new talking point. As a result sales increased so that in 1937 the U. S. supplied about 34 per cent of the South American imports compared with 31 in 1936. Germany, meantime, had only a 13 per cent share of the South American market in 1937 compared with 15 the year previous.

Further, a Brazilian trade commission visited Washington in 1937 and went back impressed with two things: First, that, after all, the U. S. always has been her best and surest customer, in peace time and war; and second, that concessions granted to the U. S. in the trade treaty was being undermined by the subsidy regime of Germany.

Too little time has elapsed to determine South American reaction to Germany's abrupt suspension of purchases from Brazil, but observers surmise it may add to a growing list of minor grievances against German trade from which U. S. exporters will benefit.

Il Duce Revamps Addis Ababa Despite Native Opposition

Addis Ababa — (AP) — While her colonial armies are busy trying to put down balky Ethiopian tribesmen who refuse to accept Italian domination of this ancient African Kingdom, Italy's Empire builders are reconstructing Haile Selassie's old capital.

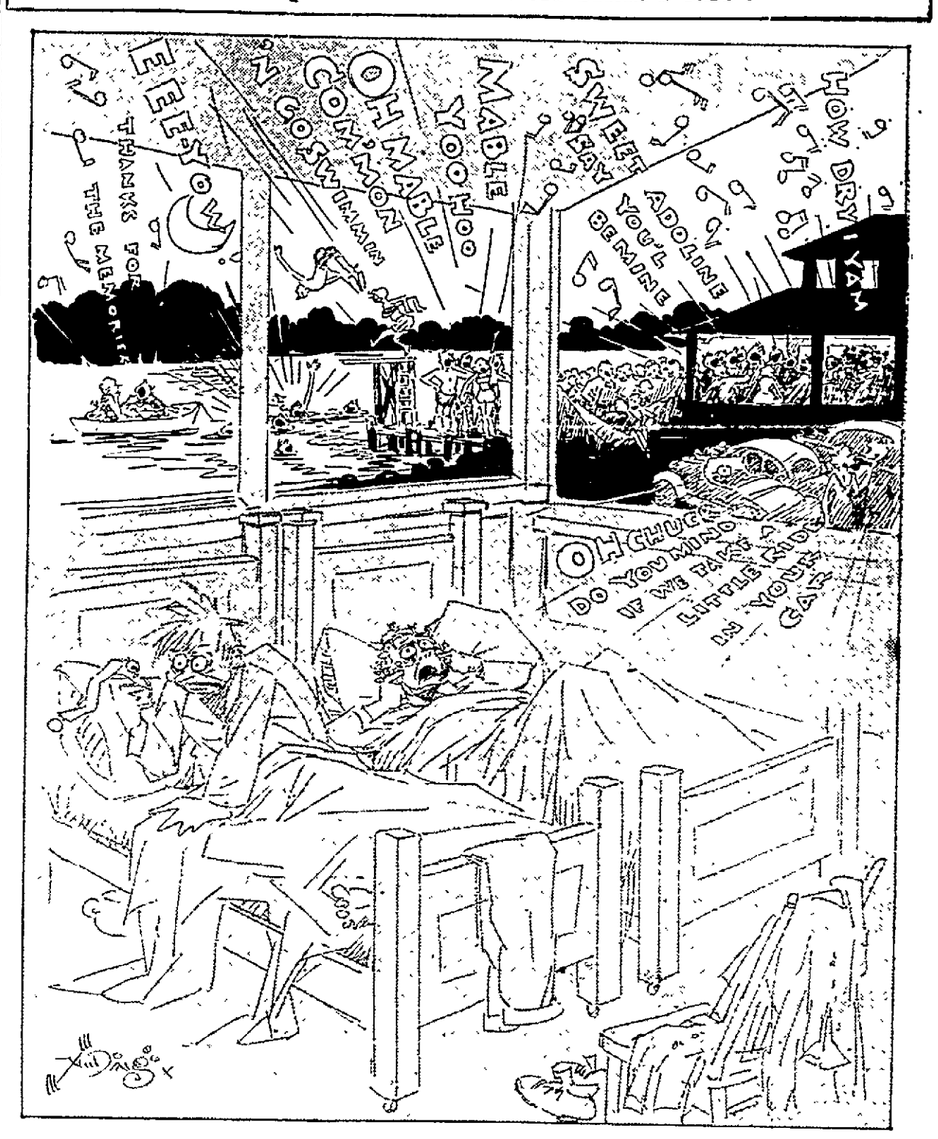

Military and administrative buildings, restaurants, bars, cinemas, and shops have sprung up among the native mud-huts and Greek and Armenian shops Pavements have been built and roads resurfaced.

Many of the main centers of activity are being transferred to fresh quarters. The ancient "great market" has been moved to the district where the American legation formerly stood. In its place modern roads lined by shops have been constructed.

The industrial and commercial center is to be moved to the Filoa district, near the railway station. This quarter, formerly swampy, has now been drained, and is dominated by military buildings of modern architecture surrounded by gardens.

Upon Mussolini's orders, Ethiopian natives who show any opposition to the Fascist regime in the Duce's new empire, are promptly shot. Whole towns and villages in the interior are reported to have been wiped out by the Italian army and air force for resisting Mussolini's Roman legions. Foreigners here believe it will take at least another generation for Italy to pacify the country.

Your Birthday

"LEO"

If July 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 A. M.; from 1:30 to 3:30 P. M., and from 8:30 to 10:30 P. M. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 A. M.; from 6:30 to 8:30 P. M., and from 10:30 P. M., until midnight.

There may prevail a tendency to talk too quickly this day, which will get many people in trouble. Give every question careful thought before making a reply. By listening to induendo and indiscreet gossip, you run the chance of either judging some person wrong, or gaining an erroneous impression regarding his or her actions. The desire to dictate may be a contributing factor in creating unpleasant conditions before the day passes, so under no conditions be dictatorial. Mental alertness will be needed in your social and business contacts, so keep your mind centered upon whatever is said to you this day. You may find yourself better off financially or acquiring worldly goods within twenty-four hours. Married and engaged couples, and those who find themselves Cupid's willing pawns in his game of love, must be tactful in expressing adverse opinion, if called upon to say just what they think regarding personal motives and actions.

If a woman and July 26 is your birthday, you might find yourself having difficulty in putting over some very worthwhile idea. Do not get discouraged, for you might find yourself in the position to do so. Your work as an educator, artist, musician, saleslady, actress or trained nurse might bring you numerous opportunities to advance yourself and make money.

The child born on July 26, is apt to be exceptionally truthful, with plenty of moral courage. Children born on this date generally have such strong opinions that they give the impression they are of a stubborn nature, which frequently is not the case. Success often comes to those who celebrate this as their birth anniversary, soon after they start their business or professional career.

If a man and July 26 is your natal day, you are, most likely, very diplomatic, make friends readily, and will finally win Lady Luck's favor. As a jurist, statesman, politician, builder, contractor, artist, author or sales agent your future ought to be assured.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SOMETHING ODD

Mrs. G. S. writes that she was interested in something she saw in the paper about No Ramps in Odd House.

No Ramps in Odd House, but never mind. What Mrs. G. S. craves to know is all about colored cement or composition which some one suggested for floors in Odd House. She wonders whether that means ordinary cement painted, and if so, what kind of paint and where she can get it.

Mr. L. K. did suggest that the floors of Odd House should be made of large red or other colored tiles which are fireproof, everlasting, require no further varnishing or painting after first cost of installation, develop no squeaks under foot and give no cracks or crevices for insects to hide in. Tiles are easily kept clean. Wooden floors, altho perhaps warmer under foot, require frequent scraping, repainting, varnishing, etc., so that the upkeep makes them more expensive in the long run than tile floors.

But then, that's tile, and what Mrs. G. S. seeks is a colored cement floor material. I know nothing about it. By the time we get out the new pamphlet on "Odd House" perhaps some one who does know will come forward with information.

At this juncture Mrs. O. B. S. rises to inquire who is going to work in the kitchen with the cement floor. She fears I have not discussed the matter with people who work in places having tile floors or cement floors—as in banks. Such workers, she thinks, might give me some impressions concerning the fatigue caused by such unyielding floors as compared with wood floors especially wood floors covered with rug or carpet.

Having by now gotten her second wind while I listen as courteously as possible considering my low breeding, Mrs. O. B. S. suddenly whisks out a section of interlocking rubber tiling and describes the beautiful combinations of color to be had in such floor covering, especially for laundry, kitchen, bath room, dining room, hall—but here I must raise a hand We were not planning to have a dining room in Odd House, even if the effect of the interlocking rubber tiling is ever so appealing in some old houses But Mrs. O. B. S. is really not an agent for rubber tiling. She says that in her dream house she is going to have cement floors, but positively no rugs; her floors will have all-over carpets with good thick felt pads, under them.

I like the rubber tile idea. It contributes much toward the suppression of noise. I don't like carpets or rugs. They are not so hygienic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Paget's Disease

Member of my family has what doctors call Paget's disease in one leg—leg looks as if it were broken some time, but never has been . . cannot seem to find out anything as to nature of the disease. (E. H. H.)

Husband is suffering from Paget's disease of the bones. (Mrs. E. H. C.)

Answer—Paget's disease is chronic inflammation of bone. Cause unknown. Possibly a nutritional disorder. Marsalet reported case in man aged 58 at onset, apparently cured by daily administration of massive doses of vitamin D (average of 100,000 units daily) together with supplementary feeding with calcium. Further reference by mail if you inclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

Polluted Water

Health authorities pronounce the lake water where we spend our summers unsafe for bathing, by reason of pollution. Our two children are unhappy about no bathing. If they are immunized against typhoid, para-typhoid and bacillus coli would they be endangered by swimming in the lake? (Mrs. M. W. H.)

Answer—Far less than the non-immune would be. But if the health department finds the lake water so grossly polluted and warns against swimming there, you had better heed that advice.

Special Submarine For Arctic Waters Described by Wilkins

Oslo —(AP)— A $150,000 stainless steel submarine for use as a permanent weather bureau under the ice at the north pole is envisaged by Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer and Antarctic aviator.

Sir Hubert says weather reports must be greatly improved before a regular air route can be established across the polar icefields.

"The only effective way to secure such reports is to have a floating headquarters, and that headquarters must be under the ice because the ice masses are in constant drift," he says

"A submarine could remain at the north pole for three years. Food and equipment would be supplied by airplanes, which landed on the ice before winter began.

"Life in such a submarine would be quite comfortable, as the temperature of the Arctic ocean is only 32 degrees Fahrenheit, although the air is intensely cold."

Sir Hubert says he has perfected an instrument which would drill a hole through the ice from the submarine, so scientists could get to the surface to take observations

Mt. Washington Gives Accurate Weather Tips

Milton, Mass.—Mount Washington, New Hampshire, 250 miles from here and the highest peak in New England, is a reliable indicator of rain or snow for Boston and vicinity, according to Dr. Charles F. Brooks, Blue Hill Observatory director.

The director says that studies have disclosed that "when temperatures on Mount Washington are under 10 degrees Fahrenheit, any precipitation beginning at Boston within 24 hours is almost certain to begin as snow; but if Mount Washington is above 15 degrees, Boston's precipitation usually is rain.

'Platinum Blonde' Beavers Live in Mine

Saguache, Colo. — (AP) — Chief Game Warden John Hart has solved the mystery of the platinum blonde beaver.

"They were living in the depth of the Bonanza gold mine where there was enough acid in the water to dissolve a nail in about three weeks," said Hart. "The acid turned their natural brownish color to silver."

Hart ordered them trapped alive and removed to more agreeable surroundings on the surface.

More Than Half Of City Budget Spent to July 1

Balance of $176,463 Remains to Finance Departments to Year's End

Of the $428,665 placed in the budget to run city departments during 1938, a total of $252,201.14 was spent or committed up to July 1, leaving a balance of $176,463.86 to go along on the remainder of the year, according to Carl J. Becher, city comptroller.

All budgets show balances except those for paving and graveling, street oiling, new sidewalks, snow removal and WPA projects. All the budgets showing overdrafts are covered by special tax assessments and the money spent will be recovered when taxes are paid next year, the comptroller said.

Actual money spent to July 1 totaled $238,441.76 while unpaid commitments aggregate $13,759.38. In addition to the unpaid commitments, the city has pledged itself to borrow about $50,000 to finance its share of the Lincoln school remodeling and about $83,000 for its share of the city-wide paving project, if and when the two projects are approved by PWA officials. However, the last two figures will not affect this year's budget.

Relief Fund Hit

The relief department fund, for which $40,000 was set aside, is hardest hit of any of the department budgets. Only $5,848 remains for the rest of the year. Relief in Appleton during June showed an increase of almost $2,000 over June, 1937. However, officials expect the amount will be reduced in July.

A total of $11,561 was deducted from the contingent fund to augment other funds. The budget at the beginning of the year was $40,000 and July 1 totaled $28,321.94. The sum of $500 was taken from that fund for fireworks, $500 for the electrical department fund, $3,000 for snow removal, $4,600 for new equipment, $2,901 for the recreational fund and $60 for auditing.

Snow removal during the first half of the year cost the city $11,894.11 and there is an $894 overdraft in that budget. The original amount set aside for snow removal was $8,000.

The budget for new equipment was increased from $1,500 to $6,100 and now has $4,435 remaining. The city purchased three new trucks for the street department which were not included in the original budget.

It Is Said--

That a nice string of fish, caught by someone who apparently didn't care about eating them, had phones in city hall buzzing persistently this morning. The fish in question were thrown on a lot near the Odd Fellow's hall and had been dead too long to have an odor even a little bit pleasing to noses in that vicinity. The result was complaints to the officials in city hall who ordered the street department to clean up the mess.

That an Appleton mail carrier was just a little embarrassed this morning when he asked for information about an address on a card he carried stamped "not in directory." The address on the card was "U. S. Gov't Official Project." The 'V' in the abbreviation of government looked very much like an 'O' and the mailman's question when he asked for information was: "Do you know anyone by the name of U. S. Goot?"

That Larry Roeck, 220 E. Lawrence street, Lawrence graduate who pitches ball for the Sheboygan Chairs, was the principal in a front-page story in the Valparaiso, Ind., "Vidette-Messenger" last week because he returned a lost wallet to its owner.

While on a baseball trip, Roeck stopped at a restaurant in Valparaiso. He found a wallet lying in the booth and was unable to locate the owner in the restaurant. He took the name and address—A. Danks, 7103 Ridgeland avenue, Chicago—from the identification card and mailed the wallet, giving his name and citing the circumstances.

Mr. Danks, who had given up the wallet, and the money and papers contained therein for lost, called at the newspaper office in Valparaiso on his next trip down and told the story.

Install Fr. Grace As St. Mary Pastor

Rev. J. J. Sprangers Conducts Ceremonies, Preaches Sermon

Formal installation of the Rev. William Grace as new pastor of St. Mary Catholic church took place during the 10:30 high mass Sunday morning at the church. The Rev. J. J. Sprangers, Little Chute, was installing dean and conducted the ceremonies and also preached the sermon during the mass. A number of pastors from Appleton and Neenah-Menasha were present in the sanctuary.

The ceremonies began with a procession of clergy from the pastor's residence to the church where Father Grace was presented with the keys to the church by Father Sprangers. The procession then continued up the middle aisle to the sanctuary where the new pastor made a profession of faith, and the high mass followed.

About 500 members of the parish gathered on the church lawn last evening after the devotions in the church, to meet Father Grace and welcome him to his new pastorate. Ice cream and cookies were served.

Bar President Asks Lawyers to Curb Intolerance

Vanderbilt Sees World Threat to 'Reason and Common Sense'

Cleveland —(AP)— Arthur T. Vanderbilt, president of the American Bar association, called upon the nation's lawyers today to perfect the processes of justice as a bulwark against intolerance which "stalks the globe."

"We have reached the point where suggestions for concentrating one's opponents in Alaska are seriously advocated in open court by men claiming to carry the banner of democracy," Vanderbilt said in his annual address prepared for the sixty-first meeting of the association.

Vanderbilt presumably referred to the recent testimony of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

"Intolerance stalks the globe," Vanderbilt continued. "The entire world seems to be dividing into two classes, one believing that whatever is, is right, the other that whatever is, is wrong.

"Reason and common sense seem to be in danger of being crushed between the upper and nether millstones of conservatism, so-called, and of liberalism, so-called. Some leaders in public life seem to be unable to distinguish between freedom of speech, freedom of the press and the right of lawful assembly on the one side and treason to government on the other."

Lawyers poured into Cleveland during the weekend to attend the five-day session of the association and its committees.

The National Association of Women Lawyers adopted a resolution urging the appointment of United States Circuit Judge Florence E. Allen of Ohio to the United States Supreme court.

Don't Try to Fool Officer; He Knows All the Answers

When the erring motorist is stopped by a county traffic officer, he may expect any answer from the driver except an honest admission of an infraction of regulations, according to Outagamie county motorcycle officers.

"Officer, you are right. I was going too fast" is a reply that is given so few times that if the offense is not serious and traffic is not endangered by it, the officer may not make an arrest but permit the driver to go free with a warning.

However, the answer most times is that the motorist didn't "think he was going too fast," didn't "believe he was driving recklessly," didn't "see the stop sign," or didn't "notice the traffic guide lines."

"You soon learn all the answers," one officer said. "In 99 per cent of the cases the drivers hand out excuses, most of them lame ones. The hardest ones to take are from motorists living in the county. They come back with 'I didn't see the stop sign.' There may be some excuse for an out-of-state traveler missing a stop sign, but none for a county resident who should be familiar with the roads and dangerous intersections where regulations must be enforced.

Warning Didn't Help

"And sometimes you wonder if you should leave an out-of-state motorist go with a warning when you are in doubt that he saw a traffic sign. Not long ago I stopped an Illinois car after the driver made a right turn from a center lane, cutting in front of several other cars. I "bawled" him out and told him it was a dangerous practice. He didn't take the lecture very well and I ordered him to park at the side of the highway until he cooled off. Next day I found that he was involved in an accident at Fond du Lac. Perhaps he needed a fine to teach him a lesson and then the Fond du Lac accident wouldn't have occurred."

Another officer said it was hard to take some of the poor excuses handed out after "you risk your neck in catching some young speed demon."

There is still another reaction that the police sometimes find in women drivers. Some will run the gamut of feminine trickery and emotions.

"First they give you the works by turning a tooth paste ad smile and mumble something about not knowing the speed laws. With the response that it is 'just too bad,' they blink their eyes and turn on the rain and the pleading starts."

A few motorists try to get by with saying they'll have it fixed, but the only fixing that is done is payment of the fine and costs.

"Yep, the life of a traffic officer is a trying one," one guardian of the law concluded.

Robber Gets $70. Orders Price Cut At Filling Station

Milwaukee —(AP)— A holdup man who walked into the Clifford Winkleman's filling station not only rifled the cash box of nearly $70, but dictated a cut in gasoline prices to a customer as well.

Midway in the holdup a customer drove up to the pumps. At the bandit's suggestion, Winkelman served the motorist with gasoline to the amount of 58 cents. Then came an embarrassing situation:

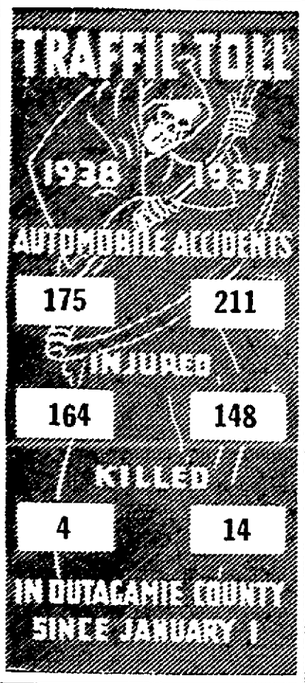

The customer had 55 cents in change and a $1 bill. The bandit had all Winkelman's change. There was a moment's hesitation.

Then the bandit spoke up.

"The 55 cents will be enough, buddy. No real gas man would argue over 3 cents."

With the surprised motorist on his way, the bandit completed the holdup and fled.

Expect Slight Decrease In July Relief Costs

City relief costs are expected to decrease during July, but the drop will not be as great as that for July of last year, according to F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director. There were 185 cases cared for during June at a cost of $4,934.62, which was almost $2,000 greater than the amount spent during June of 1937. The July cost also is expected to be greater than that for the corresponding month of last year.

Congressman Schneider To Speak at Green Bay

Congressman George J. Schneider will speak tonight at a meeting of commercial fishermen at Green Bay. Laws applying to fishermen, the inter-state situation and the proposed treaty between Canada and the Great Lakes will be discussed.

Your Question And Its Answer

QUESTION — "I am continually troubled with sleeplessness and nervousness that keeps me awake for hours after I go to bed. No one has been able to tell me what causes it, can you?" — Mrs. J A. L.

ANSWER —There is nothing of the mysterious in chiropractic. It is something everyone can understand. Your symptoms are merely effects, and back of every effect there must be a cause. Find the cause of your trouble, adjust it, and the effect disappears. Briefly stated, this is Chiropractic, and Chiropractic is different from any other health method on earth. Why? Simply because an examination of the spine will always account for the true cause of the patient's illness, and after locating the cause, the remedy is the same in one case as in another. There is nothing unusual about your symptoms. A Spinal Analysis will enable us to give you definite advice and counsel.

QUESTION—"I am a woman of thirty-nine and need advice. Am not at all strong, hardly able to do my housework, no appetite, rest poorly at night, have headaches and my back aches across the hips. Will Adjustments be all right considering my weakness?"—Mrs L M

ANSWER—With such symptoms as you have named, why continue to neglect your health? Reliable, trustworthy advice resulting from thorough training and experience in the Drugless Science of Chiropractic is at your service to solve your health problems, thus insuring you both health and happiness. Spinal Adjustments offer you a systematic, practical, mechanical and exact method of restoring you to health. There is nothing about your case, as you have presented it, that should make you feel that hope is gone. We advise an immediate spinal examination to reveal just what is causing your extreme weakness.

Menasha Man May Face Lie Detector

District Attorney Considers Use of Machine in Embezzlement Case

Menasha—District Attorney Lewis C. Magnussen today is considering subjecting Julius Meyer, route 1, Menasha, charged with embezzling more than $1,200 from the International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers union at Menasha, to a lie detector test.

Meyer, recently bound over following a preliminary hearing, was scheduled to plead to an information Saturday morning, but Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsinger adjourned the appearance until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Aug. 1. The court also postponed sentencing Ervin Wheelock, 115½ Main street, Menasha, until Aug. 1, because his case and that of the Meyer case are closely interwoven. Wheelock recently pleaded guilty of embezzling funds from the Neenah-Menasha Trades and Labor council. The sum was designated in the complaint as $57.42. Another complaint charges him with misappropriating $15.93 belonging to the Twin City Union club. He also pleaded guilty to that charge. Sentence in both cases was postponed.

The district attorney and Defense Attorney Frank B. Keefe spent several hours Friday afternoon going over the books of the union with Meyer and officers of the union in an effort to locate the shortage which has been placed in the court records at $1,296.63. Unable to arrive at any definite conclusion, the district attorney said that he would consider subjecting some of the individuals involved, including Meyer, to the lie detector test.

Paying Dividends Won't Cut Taxes

Taxpayers' Alliance Says New Federal Law Is Highly Confusing

Madison—Federal taxes on 1938 incomes of most corporations will not be affected by dividends declared and paid, the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance stated today. This is contrary to the wide-spread belief that under the 1938 federal revenue act dividends declared by corporations will reduce the taxes by 2½ per cent of the dividends.

The Alliance stated that most people believe the new federal corporation income tax law provides for a tax of 19 per cent on the net income, less 26 per cent credit for dividends paid.

"Actually, less than one-tenth of all corporations will come under the dividend paid credit provision of the 1938 revenue act," the Alliance stated. "About nine out of ten corporations have incomes of less than $25,000, and these corporations will come under a special provision of the 1938 act which provides that the income tax will not be changed by the dividends paid."

Also contrary to general belief, corporations paying dividends will pay higher taxes than under the old law while corporations which do not pay dividends will pay lower taxes than under the old law.

The new federal corporation income tax law abolishes the old normal tax and undestributed profits surtax and instead establishes four groups of corporations with different tax rates; corporations with net income of less than $25,000, corporations with incomes of slightly over $25,000, corporations with incomes of well over $25,000, and special corporations. The real effect of the law will be that tax rates will amount to less than 16½ per cent on corporations with net incomes of $28,871 or less, and it will make no difference in their tax whether or not they pay dividends.

"The taxes on net incomes between $28,871 and $34,324 are affected by the amount of dividends declared, but it is not until the higher bracket of income is reached that it becomes necessary to declare the entire amount of net income in dividends in order to keep the net rate at approximately 16½ per cent.

Corporations with incomes in excess of $34,423 will pay a net income tax at a flat rate of 19 per cent, less certain credits including 2½ per cent of an amount representing dividends paid."

The Alliance believes the new federal corporation tax law is one of the most complicated tax structures ever devised and that there is a great deal of confusion and misunderstanding about it.

Collie Dog Saves Pigs In Illinois Farm Fire

Jerseyville, Ill. —(AP)— Clarence Boner's collie dog is pretty much of a hero around the Boner farmyard. Boner said that when a fire destroyed $5,000 worth of barns and property, the dog not only ran into the burning buildings and chased two sows and their litters outside, but forced the pigs out of the way of falling embers and into a nearby pond.

Officials on the team include Carl Becher, Harry Hoeffel, Clarence Baetz, George Peotter, Joseph Kox, Alfred Wickesberg, Claude Greisch, Louis Luebke and William Gallaher. New Jersey Man Weds 'Mail-Order' Widow

Matawan, N. J. — (AP) — After solemnly pondering for several weeks, 59 year-old Judson Van Arsdale, mail order Romeo, has decided between two "wonderful women" and married Mrs. May Meyer.

She and Mrs. Nellie Davis, 44, came to his home in answer to his advertisement for a bride. Both were good housekeepers, he discovered. Both liked him and both wanted to remain.

Mrs. Meyer, Washington, D. C., was the first to arrive and she and Van Arsdale had their marriage license a month ago when Mrs. Davis of Paris, Ill., also answered the ad in person. She liked the Van Arsdale home and the man of the house, and moved right in.

Until Saturday he had refused to "take sides" in the aspirations of the two women. Van Arsdale said the wedding was performed Saturday by the Rev. Garrett S. Detwiler at the First Baptist church.

He said Mrs. Davis would go home within a day or two.

Agent Offers Stars Chance to Gamble On Own Productions

Hollywood — (AP) — Agent Myron Selznick, who hunts jobs for movie stars at six-figure salaries and pockets 10 per cent as commission, today offered those of his clients who are contract-free a chance to gamble on producing their own pictures.

For the first time since two decades ago when Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and D. W. Griffith launched United Artists, a revolutionary change impended in the traditional status of big-name actors as hired employes.

As a partner with stars, directors and writers, Selznick said a series of individual producing units would be set up, each bearing the name of the top-flight personality involved.

"The personalities will be in the position of gambling on themselves, accepting profits and losses according to how their pictures fare on the world market," he explained.

First to go partners with Selznick in the fickle business of film-making is Ernst Lubitsch, long noted for his direction of naughty-nice comedies.

Tentative negotiations indicate that Carole Lombard, slim blonde comedienne, may be the next to set up a production company.

Maybe Nazis in America Will Want Autonomy Too

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The time has come to recognize the existence of German minorities in certain areas of the United States, notably in New Jersey and specifically in the Yorkville section of New York City, and to head off trouble with Adolf Hitler by concessions to them. Otherwise Hitler eventually will send his armies in to complete the task of his political agents, whose work already is well advanced through the hyphen-American bunds, and these districts may be seized by force as Austria was.

Pegler

In that event our national prestige and pride will be badly damaged, and the American minorities residing in these predominantly German neighborhoods will be punished as fiercely as the Austrian nonnazis are today. We should placate the German minorities at any sacrifice.

The terms upon which this may be effected without bloodshed may be read in the demands which have been presented to the government of Czechoslovakia on behalf of Hitler's minority there.

First:—These German sections in our country must have complete territorial autonomy. Yorkville, a neighborhood in the city of New York, for example, must be recognized as an independent German state within the United States.

Second:—These German sections must be permitted to have their own armed police, organized on military lines, and the police of New York city must be withdrawn and kept out of Yorkville. The frontiers of Yorkville may be fortified against the United States, if the nazis so desire, and members of the American minority who remain in Yorkville must accept the status of aliens, subject to the usual restrictions placed on foreigners in Germany.

Third:—These German sections shall be indemnified by the United States for any damage which they may believe they have suffered since 1918 through the imposition of the American form of government on their people.

They Would Receive Nazi Military Training

Fourth:—The male youths of these sections shall receive nazi pre-military training, so that if they should join the American army or navy they would join as nazis, loyal to Hitler, drilled to the minute in treachery against the United States and qualified to act as spies and saboteurs in the service of the Reich.

Fifth:—They shall have the right to impose additional taxes, especially on the members of the American minority in their midst.

Sixth:—There shall be full equality of national languages in the United States to the end that German may be made by law the official language of these districts of Jersey and New York City. Children of the American minority in the schools shall learn German, and the courts and all official records shall be conducted in that tongue.

Seventh:—All American officials holding public positions in these areas shall be discharged and nazi substitutes shall be named by Adolf Hitler. Elsewhere, where there is a scattering of nazis but a majority, nazi officials shall be named in proportion to numbers. Not Americans of German descent nor honestly naturalized Germans but nazi Germans.

As an eighth condition, not stated but implied in the terms which Hitler has presented to the national government of Czechoslovakia, all members of these minorities in our country shall have the full citizenship rights of Americans while giving their allegiance to Hitler.

Our Case No Different That That of Austria

This last condition need not be pressed because most of the nazis of the Hitler minority now make a practice of taking out American citizenship in order that they may organize American societies under the nazi banner and work for Hitler in the guise of Americans.

Hitler's political agents think this is the best way, and probably it is, because his minority in Austria claimed Austrian citizenship and its benefits while preparing to betray the country to Berlin. The nazis in Czechoslovakia have done the same. Thus also the nazis and young nazis may hold military drills, goose-steping and heiling Hitler under the American flag, and when criticized for this may swear that they are loyal Americans and were only holding a patriotic parade under their constitutional right of freedom to assemble.

There may be some Americans who will object to this proposal, but the sensible way will be to recognize that Hitler often has proclaimed that wherever any considerable body of nazis are there is Germany and avowed his determination to redeem all his minorities in time. Our case is no different from that of Austria and Czechoslovakia.

Colored Clothes Are Sterilized by New Method, Report

Chicago —(AP)— Modern medical science, after 18 months of study, has found a way for commercial laundries to turn out colored clothes in a completely sterile condition, Dr. Lloyd Arnold, professor of bacteriology and public health at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, reported today.

Dr. Arnold said white clothes, subjected to high temperatures and numerous changes of waiter, came through examinations, sterile as to bacteria, but colored clothes, treated at lower temperatures, showed bacteria.

Long research traced the bacteria to soap crusts in the clothes which had been unsterilized in the tubs. A simple treatment remedied this.

Dr. Arnold said home washing had two weaknesses, judged from a bacteriological standpoint. He said temperatures of the wash water were not maintained high enough to destroy bacteria effectively, and the water was not changed often enough to reduce the bacteria by dilution.

Judge Refuses to Permit Disbarred Racket Attorney to Leave Prison

New York—(AP)—The surreptitious visits of J. Richard "Dixie" Davis has been paying to the apartment of Hope Dare, red-haired showgirl, came to an abrupt end today when Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora refused to sign another order permitting the disbarred attorney to leave Tombs prison.

Davis is held in default of $75,000 bail on charges of conspiracy in connection with District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's widespread investigation of the policy racket, once controlled by Arthur "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer, slain racketeer. James J. Hines., powerful Tammany district leader, also has been indicted with Davis and others.

The work of an amateur photographer disclosed last week that Davis, guarded by detectives, had been visiting the showgirl's apartment while away from the Tombs to see a physician. Miss Dare was arrested with Davis in Philadelphia several months ago.

District Attorney Dewey has declined to affirm or deny reports of Davis' visits, but presumably they were made with his knowledge as detectives stood outside the door of the apartment while Davis was inside.

The order Justice Pecora refused to sign was handed to him at the opening of a hearing on Dewey's application for re-argument on the court's decision to give Hines a partial bill of particulars.

Wisconsin Leading Nation This Year In Pea Production

Washington—(AP)—Wisconsin leads the country in the prospective production of green peas this year.

The agriculture department reported today the state's indicated acreage yield of 1,800 pounds would make a crop of 93,960 tons of shelled beans. Wisconsin produced 73,850 tons last year with an average acreage yield of 1,360 pounds.

Nationally, the pea crop on July 15 indicated a production of 281,670 tons, a record high, the department reported. Last year growers produced 268,110 tons, the high mark up to that time.

Indicated production in states, compared with last year's yield, included:

Michigan 9,750 and 11,250; Minnesota 18,840 and 18,340; Illinois 13,720 and 13,090.

Corrigan Is Making 2-Day Visit in London

London—(AP)—Douglas G. Corrigan, whose "reverse gear" flight to California ended in Dublin, Ireland, just a week ago, still is considering offers of movie contracts—"but not too seriously."

Corrigan arrived in England today by commercial airliner and spent a busy morning, including a long talk with United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, his host for a two-day visit.

"My time is pretty well booked up," said the 31-year-old Californian.

"I am to be taken around and shown the sights of London. Tomorrow I am visiting as many aircraft factories as I have an opportunity to see, for my work gives me an interest in them.

"I shall return to Dublin Wednesday or Thursday, travel to Cork Friday where I'll join the steamship Manhattan and return to New York."

HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS! CAMERA! ACTION! HAPPENINGS

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Families with various mental screws loose have cavorted upon the screen too freely for several years now as part of the insane comedy cycle. Erratic mamas and balmy papas, surrounded by helter-skelter children in varying stages of insouciant dizziness, motivated film after film until the public, loving it at first, finally said "Enough."

The prize play, "You Can't Take It With You," set Columbia studios back $200,000 when it was purchased last year — when studios were still buying plays at such fancy prices. The play concerns a rather extraordinary family, and conceivably, if it were photographed as it was played on the stage, might be just another nutty comedy of the waning cycle. (Last worthy specimen, "Merrily We Live.")

Successful Before

But Director Frank Capra and Writer Robert Riskin, as usual on the stories they adapt, have done things to the play. New treatments on successful stage plays (or novels) used to be considered cinematic high-hardedness, but nowadays even the playwrights seldom object. Especially when the team of Capra and Riskin is performing the operation.

These two had a short story called "Night Bus" as a foundation for "It Happened One Night," and after that one most authors—playwrights, too—were glad to let them twist things around a bit from their original state. "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" increased their stature, and "Lost Horizon" did not hurt it, although many were disappointed in the picture as compared to James Hilton's novel.

The principal change in approach to this play seems to be a greater emphasis on the philosophy expressed in the title — unless one counts the inclusion of a new character, one Mr. Poppins, being played by Donald Meek. Mr. Poppins is merely one more nose snatched from an office grindstone by Lionel Barrymore's Grandpa Vandehof, but he's in for a purpose which should be one of the picture's better laughs.

'Room Service' Starting

Adding to the original $200,000 story investment, Capra has assembled one of his usual casts. Usual for Capra means actors to fit the characters, and in some cases expensive names which have had star billing. Besides Barrymore, Jean Arthur and James Stewart, he has Ann Miller (the heroine of "Radio City Revels") and Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington (mama of the "Jones Family") and Halliwell Hobbes. Even one of the stars of "The Green Pastures" — the Noah — is present in the person of Eddie Anderson.

While "You Can't Take It With You" is well along, the screen's most expensive story purchase from the stage is just getting started. "Room Service" cost RKO $255,000 and is in the hands of the Marxes and Director William Seiter.

While the stage comedy is being revamped for Marxian use, the usual procedure is reversed because the changes in the play will be small compared to the changes in the Marxes.

Groucho, for instance, will forsake his big painted mustache for a real one, home-grown, and Chico will attempt to conform to character instead of pursuing his own mad devices. For a while there was a plan to make Harpo break his silence — beating Chaplin to the talkie draw — but this was abandoned. There are points, apparently, beyond which the defilers of tradition dare not go.

The way to keep a steady job in pictures is to start off one of these series things. Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane appeared in the first of the Torchy Blane talkies, but were let off contract for subsequent "Torchies" in which other actors were used. Now the Warner lot has them back—by popular demand — but meanwhile the "U" has capitalized on the teaming by using them both in "Walls of San Quentin" . . .

America's Relief Problem

Difficulties Started When U. S. Leveled After Expansion

Emergency relief started on a nation-wide scale six years ago. Today, it's still with us—and there has even been a new relief crisis, marked in Cleveland and Chicago by fund shortages and protest parades. To get at the root of the trouble, Morgan Beatty has gone into the records and talked with authorities about the number of Americans on relief, the cost, the question of work relief vs. the dole, and proposed solutions. This is the first of his three articles.

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY

Washington—(AP)—If you and I had been reading between the lines of our history books back in the high-stepping days before 1929, we would have been scared stiff.

For we'd have known that one day within our lifetime one-fourth of the workers of the nation would be hunting jobs in vain.

We would have foreseen a map of the United States splotched with several areas marked "sub-standard resources; stranded populations."

On the Record

We might have predicted that our congress, our state legislatures and our city councils would be spending borrowed money at the rate of two billion dollars a year to care for jobless millions.

It might have done no good to recognize them, but nevertheless facts and figures showing us riding for a fall were in the history books then—if we had known how to interpret them. (Some people claim they warned us.) Also, they bobbed up the other day in a neat package, just as a senate committee began hunting clues to the mystery of unemployment and relief. Here they are:

1. U. S. territorial expansion waxed and waned.

2. The railroad industry grew like a sun-flower, then never grew another inch.

3. A nation basically agricultural became a nation basically industrial.

4. Automobile manufacturing appeared, raced into mass production, and tapered off to a steady grind.

5. Borrowed money from Europe developed the nation, then disappeared, while we became creditor-bankers to Europe and the world.

6. Immigration swelled until we had taken in 38,000,000 of Europe's poor in the 110 years before 1930. Then it dropped to a mere trickle.

7. Population grew from 4,000,000 in George Washington's day to 129,000,000 in 1937. Then the increases tapered off. We are adding only 9,000,000 between 1930 and 1940.

8. City growth mushrooned, taking 1,400,000 a year from our farms in the busy twenties, then dropped off, until now the cities are taking on only 560,000 new residents a year.

Now let Statistician Thomas S. Holden explain all this to us, just as he did to the senators:

"Each of those eight expansion factors had a beginning, a growth to maturity, then a reduced acceleration. What we have witnessed in the past few years has been NO ordinary depression, but the coming of age of a great nation."

He means we needed millions of men to develop this nation into the greatest industrial producer on the face of the earth, but we don't need quite so many to keep the machinery going, now that it's here. That's the broad explanation of our estimated 12,000,000 jobless, and the reason why the problem is not necessarily a temporary one.

When Resources Fail

Brookings Institution, a research organization interested in cold facts, has just completed a survey in which these thought-provoking observations pop out:

"Although as a nation the United States has been carried further than any other in the scale of productivity and income, . . . it contains areas and communities which technological progress has almost passed by and whose populations have been left stranded on much lower levels of economic activity than the rest of the nation. . . .

"Dr. Carter Goodrich (noted economist) indicates four major regions with what may be called stranded populations . . . the 'Southern Appalachian coal plateaus,' the 'old cotton belt,' the 'cutover regions of the great lakes states,' and 'the great plains.'"

Cornhusking, New Style

Illuminating the same problem are the stories of witness after witness before the congressional committees this spring and summer. For instance, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace said:

". . . A survey indicates more than 3,300 mechanical corn pickers have been sold in Iowa during the last two years and that about 6,000 were used in the last harvest. . . .

While the average price of hand husking is about $2 an acre in Iowa, these machines can do the job for $1.25 to $1.50. Since each picker replaces approximately three hand pickers, it is estimated that between 15,000 and 20,000 agricultural laborers have been thrown out of work this fall in Iowa alone."

Each such story reflects a facet of the relief problem. Each swells the proof that the depressions of 1929 and 1938 are merely symptoms of economic ailments. But it remained for these depressions to make the country relief conscious, and to make the destitute themselves relief conscious.

(Tomorrow: What relief costs and what the taxpayers get for their money.)

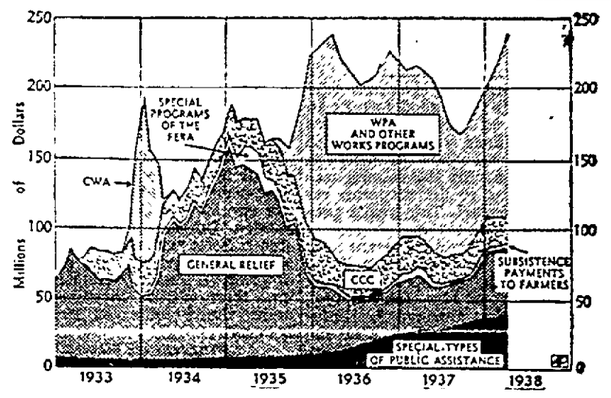

CHART SHOWS HIGH RELIEF COSTS

Here's what public relief costs. The chart, based on one prepared by Social Security Board, excludes transient care and administrative expense. It shows monthly totals. Cost for March, 1938, for instance, was about $241,000,000.

Chicago Man Slain as He Greets Men in Car

Chicago — (AP) — Someone called from an automobile to Nick Chiaramonte, 56, last night as he started toward his home with two "hot tamales" he had purchased from a vendor on the corner.

He ambled over to the car and nodded to the men in it. A moment later he was dead from four bullets fired by one of the car's occupants.

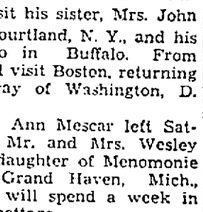

Among the first to reach his side after the shooting was his 12-year-old niece, who had watched the grim encounter from a porch a few feet away.

Detectives sought a motive for the slaying in Chiaramonte's business dealings. He was a dealer in car-lots of watermelons.

Name Bowlby To District Moose Office

CLAUDE N. Bowlby, Appleton, was elected vice president for the fifth district of Wisconsin Moose association and Green Bay was chosen as the convention city for 1939 at the closing sessions of the twenty-second annual state convention Sunday at Kenosha. Events for the women included a Friendship degree breakfast Sunday morning in the Dayton hotel and an all-state luncheon Saturday noon at the Youth Foundation. The convention banquet for both men and women was Saturday night.

Love on the Range

The Story So Far

Trouble is brewing on the Rafter T. Quick-fire "Blur" Ankrom, under the name of Abe Streeter, takes a job on the ranch to help lovely Lee Trone. He has a run-in with the range boss, Mose Hackett, and meets Ratchford, the sheriff, and Claydell, a neighboring rancher. Colonel Struthers and his daughter Betty arrive for a visit, and Ankrom recognizes Struthers as Kelton Drean, cousin of the man he killed to avenge his father's death.

Chapter 11

Licking Flame

Ankrom threw away his cigarette and yawned. "You boys goin' to the dance in Peso Pinto?"

"Might — if they hev good likker."

His pardner grunted. "I don't like that town. Too crowded an' too partial tuh dudes. I get in a fight ever' time I get within gunshot of the place!"

Ratchford's lips moved faintly, sardonically, in the gloom. One of the punchers said, "Either of you two gents wanta sit in on a game of stud?"

Ankrom shook his head. Ratchford said, "Not me, fella. I've played cards with you before."

The two men got up and tramped inside. A moment later Ankrom heard the scraping of a match. A flicker of light came through the window; grew steady and brightened. He heard the men dragging chairs and, a little later, the flap of cards.

"Funny Trone never wired any of these buildings but the ranchhouse an' stable."

"Yeah. Where does he get his juice?" Ankrom asked.

"He sent to El Paso for a generator an' some other doo-hickies couple years back. Said he might's well keep up to date. I reckon it was Lee put the idee in his head. He'd just about cut his neck off for that girl an' she for him." Ratchford sighed. "They're pretty close, them two."

"Seen Trone yet?"

"No," the sheriff answered. "Reckon it's about time I sauntered over to the house an' had my talk. I been hopin' them friends of his would drift off to bed. I'd prefer to see the Ol' Man alone."

"You'll have a long wait if you're waitin' for them to go to bed. City folks sit up all night. They go to bed with the owls," Ankrom said. "Do you think there's anythin' in this rustling talk?"

Ratchford fingered his chin. "Don't seem to be any other outfits losin' critters. They might be keepin it to themselves, of course. Again, there might really be some stealin' going on an' Trone be the only gent that's gettin' hit." With a grunt he rose to his feet, peered down at Ankrom. "You heard what that puncher said."

The sound of voices came to Ankrom from the card players. Now that Ratchford was standing, radiance from the lamp illumined his face. Weariness was written there; in the creases of the jowls, in the maze of criss-crossed lines about the eyes. His gaze was melancholy, brooding. "You see, it all ties up with that damn gab that's going round 'bout me bein' out to break the Rafter T."

"Well, there would seem to be some substance for the rumor," Ankrom murmured gently.

The sheriff stiffened. "Yeah — that's why I'd like to get my hands around the neck of the gent that's backin' it. Because my ol' man an' Trone burnt gunpowder years ago folks are willin' to swaller any kind of hog-wash that tends to picture me lookin' for revenge. Damn 'em! I believe in lettin' sleepin' dogs sleep!"

Sense Of Evil

Ankrom watched the sheriff strike out across the yard to where lights revealed the uncurtained windows of the ranchhouse. As he watched Ratchford's broad back, sharp and black against those lights, conflicting thoughts struggled to adjust themselves upon his mind.

There was much about this sheriff he did not understand, he told himself. A vital, magnetic figure, there was yet something about him, some latent force, some indefinable sense of evil, that made a man hesitate to trust him far or to put faith in his words.

Just why this was, Ankrom could not say. But the feeling lingered He could not shake it. Some way, big and magnetic as he was, Tom Ratchford measured short in Ankrom's estimation.

He wondered if Ratchford had been trying to talk him into something; if Ratchford in springing Bandera's name had hoped to take him by surprise. How much did this sheriff suspect? How much did he know? Did he really connect Abe Streeter with the Arizona smokeroo, Blur Ankrom? Or was he——?

"Shucks," Ankrom muttered. "Looks like I'm tryin' to develop a case of nerves."

Then he chuckled softly as he recalled the sheriff's statement that Bandera was lined up against the Trones. That would mean that Bandera either was in the country now or would shortly be coming in. It had been well over a year since his and Bandera's trails had crossed. In old Nogales it had happened. He remembered the circumstances well. He had taken malicious pleasure that night in upsetting a little deal the Mexican had been striving to bring off. An amusing case of "biter-bit" he'd SEYMOUR — Seymour remained in first place in the Northern State league with a 10-inning win over New London here Sunday by a score of 4 to 3. The game was the hardest fought of the year for Seymour and was the fourth extra inning game won by the club this year.

Going into the last of the ninth one run behind, Raasch batted for Binner and singled, Hammen advanced him to second from where he scored with the tying run on Penzenstadler's single.

O. Krohn opened the first of the tenth for New London with a hit but got no farther than first when the next two men struck out and the third man hit a ground ball to Hammen for an easy out.

With two out in the last of the tenth, Kelly hit to center and by fast base running and a good slide turned it into a double. Heller hit the first ball pitched out to the race track and Nicodem, who had gone in to run for Kelly, scored easily with the winning run.

The Seymour victory may prove a costly one as Kelly, who is leading the team in hitting, sprained his ankle sliding into second in the tenth, and will be out of the game for two weeks. Efforts are being made to obtain another outfielder before Sunday's game with two Rivers.

TRUCKERS WIN, 7-3

Clintonville—In an abbreviated game held here under the lights last night the Clintonville Truckers defeated the Kimberly Papermakers, 7 to 3. The game was called in the first of the eighth when rain came down in cloudbursts. It had rained off and on before the eighth inning but when the game was called and the regulation period of waiting had expired the Papermakers were willing to concede the Truckers a victory.

Sid Felts pitched for Clintonville and was credited with another victory. Kimberly used two pitchers after Lefty Behr was knocked out of the box. After Behr was withdrawn Hofkins took the mound but he also was sent to the showers and was replaced by Zinth who started to the game in center field.

The Papermakers started out with a bang scoring three runs in the first inning on three hits. However, Felts pulled himself together and after the first inning few men reached first base.

Clintonville came back in the second inning and scored six runs batting completely around. Ty Stefl, the first man up, making both the first and third out for the Truckers. In the seventh inning the Truckers came back for one run on a single, double by Felts and a triple by Stefl.

The postponed game between the New London High Lifes and Clintonville Truckers will be played Thursday at the local park under the lights.

Manitou Keeps Lead in Chicago-Mackinac Race

Chicago —(AP)— The Manitou, 62-foot yawl carrying a crew of nine, took full advantage of a steady south-southeast wind to hold its lead early today over 46 yachts in the 31st renewal of the Chicago-Machinac Island race.

Owned and skippered by James R. Lowen of Grand Rapids, Mich., the cruising division craft had a 12-mile margin over Lively Lady, a racing division entry owned by Otto Dreher of Milwaukee, when it neared Point Betsie, Mich.

The race started from Belmont Harbor Saturday.

Man Hoards Baseballs, Boys Picket His House

Council Bluffs, Iowa —(AP)— Irked when a property owner kept the two baseballs he recovered from his garden, a boys' team picketed his house.

"This man is unfair to the kids of this neighborhood," read the signs, printed with red crayon on placards.

Now juvenile officer Riley Nelson has the baseballs and the signs and says he is looking for a rule book on which to base a decision.

Detroit — Lester Graham, Tulsa University guard, signed by the Detroit Lions of the National Football League, is a partner in his father's oil business at Homing, Okla.

AND EVERYONE HAD A GOOD TIME—

"Just before the battle" might be the title for the above picture of most of the baseball stars of former years who battled the Kimberly Papermakers in a benefit game yesterday at the village which was watched by over 800 persons. The group show performers from as far back as the turn of the century although they left the playing to the group which retired only a few years ago. And that group did mighty well in holding the Papermakers to a single hit and no runs in five frames.

Slammin' Sam Is Chicago Champion

West Virginia Sensation Wins $1,500; Bank Book Shows $20,000

Chicago — (AP) — Samuel Jackson Snead, who shuffled out of the West Virginia hills and into golf's big-time just 18 months ago, added up his fairway prize money to the respectable total of $20,000 today.

The latest entry in "Slammin' Sam's" bank account was the $1,500 he picked up yesterday by winning the $5,000 Chicago Open Golf championship at Olympia fields. The victory was another in a long line of triumphs achieved by the 26-year-old star since he came from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to win the Oakland, Calif., open early in 1937.

Snead's 54-hole total was 207, one stroke under that turned in by big Ralph Guldahl, two time national open champion, who won second money of $750.

Dick Metz of Chicago placed third at 212 strokes to pick up $400 third money, with Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, and the event's low scoring amateur, Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., bracketed at 214. Dudley and Mangrum split $550 prize money. Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., Harry Cooper, Chicopee Falls, Mass., Ky Laffoon of Chicago and Willie Goggin of San Bruno, Calif., scored 216's, each getting $187.50.

In the 219 division were defending champion Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., Webb Gilbert of Topeka, Kans., and Horton Smith, Walter Hagen, colorful veteran who returned to the golf wars after two years of globe trotting, scored 222 but attracted a large portion of the gallery of 6,000 which watched play.

BADGER SCORES

Chicago — (AP) — Wisconsin scores in the Chicago open golf championship yesterday included: Wilford Wehrle, Racine, 70-73-71—214; Alvin Krueger, Beloit, 74-73-77—224; Jim Milward, Madison, 76-80-76—232.

VANCE RECALLED

Kansas City — (AP) — The Kansas City Baseball club announced yesterday that Joe Vance, righthanded pitcher who has permitted no earned runs in his last 34 innings, has been recalled by the parent New York Yankees. The Blues will receive Ernie Bonham, righthander who has won seven and lost two for Newark this season, in return.

Yankees Divide Twin Bill With Chicago White Sox

Tigers End Losing Streak With Two Victories Over Philadelphia

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Yankees, getting a "break" from the weather man for the first time since last Tuesday, split even with the Chicago White Sox in a doubleheader Sunday to maintain their one game lead on the American league pennant race.

They made the most of two hits off Thornton Lee and three enemy errors to take the opener 2 to 0 behind Lefty Gomez's six hit flinging. Red Ruffing's shoulder suddenly tightened in the nightcap after he had tossed six shutout innings, and he had to retire. The Sox clumbed aboard his relief, Johnny Murphy and Steve Sundra, for eight runs in the eighth inning and took the ball game, 8 to 3.

It was Murphy's first defeat of the year after six victories.

The twin bill, put on before a crowd of 35,946 who turned out for New York's first big league action after five days of rain, wound up the Yankee home stand with eight victories and two setbacks.

Lee was the victim of loose fielding in the opener, with the Yanks scoring both their runs in the second frame. Boze Berger dropped Joe DiMaggio's fly, and the Yank reached second. He scored a moment later, when Lee threw past third on Lou Gehrig's tap to the box. Bill Dickey then doubled Gehrig across with the final run.

In the nightcap, Red Rolfe's homer in the fourth sent the Yanks away in front, and they scored again in the fifth for a 2-0 edge. The Sox batted around, however, in their big eighth inning to give Monte Stratton his ninth win of the year against four setbacks.

TIGERS COP PAIR

Philadelphia — Detroit ended a seven-game losing streak Sunday by taking both ends of a double header from the Athletics, 7 to 6 and 7 to 3.

A six run rally in the fifth inning, climaxed by Greenberg's twenty-ninth homer with the bases full, won the first game. The A's nearly came from behind in the ninth, but with the bases full and two out, Frank Hayes hit a three and two pitch to Fox for the last out. Auker got credit for the win, although forced to leave in the fifth when hit on the hand by a line drive.

Tommy Bridges yielded only six hits in the second game, one of them a homer by Bill Werber. Sam

Brewers Win, Lose In Twin Bill With Louisville Squad

Milwaukee Team Drops First Game, 13-7 Takes Second, 9-2

MILWAUKEE—(AP)— Those 50-50" Brewers, who have been playing almost exactly 50-0 ball since the middle of May, run true to form yesterday in splitting a doubleheader with Louisville. The Brews dropped the first game, 13 to 7, but won the nightcap, 9 to 3.

Homers by Ted Gullic and comeback-bound Fred Schulte gave Lefty Rufus Meadows some annoyance in the first game, but his fellow Colonels hammered George Blaeholder and Tommy Reis all over the lot for 18 safeties. Fern Bell hit a homer and three singles to lead Louisville's attack.

The Brewers drove Lew Carpenter from the hill in the third inning of the afterpiece and continued to club hard against Johnny Owens and Fred Shaffer. Ken Jungles was touched freely by the Kerns but was tough in the pinches and helped his own cause with a home run

First game:

Louisville	430	310	020—13	18	1
Milwaukee	002	010	400— 7	8	4

Meadows and Madjeski; Blaeholder, Reis (2) and Just.

Second game:

Louisville	000	300	0—3	10	0
Milwaukee	213	300	x—9	12	2

Carpenter, Owens (3), Shaffer (4), and Ringhofer.

Positions Unchanged

The leaders got nowhere in their pennant fight yesterday when all four of the league's doubleheaders ended in splits.

Pace-sitting St. Paul got away to a good start when Art Herring pitched them to a four hit 5 to 0 shutout over Toledo. However, the Mudhens came back to take the second, 3 to 2.

At Kansas City, the Blues dropped their opener to Indianapolis, 7 to 4, but homers by Joe Gallagher and Walter Judnich helped win the second, 7 to 5.

Ted Williams hit his 29th homer of the season for Minneapolis in the first game with Columbus, only to see the Millers lose 13 to 7. He scored three singles in three official tries in the afterpiece, which the Millers won, 13 to 3.

Tony Near Win in Bout With Illness

'I'll Kill That Bum', Challenger Says of Broncho-Pneumonia

Orange, N. J.—(AP)—A "right talk" and two blood transfusions gave Tony Galento, No. 1 challenger for the heavyweight boxing crown, new vigor today in his bout with broncho-pneumonia.

"I'll kill that bum," Tony vowed.

Special prayers were offered in churches yesterday for his recovery. And prayer candles burned, including one from John Henry Lewis, with whom Tony would have clashed in a Philadelphia boxing arena tomorrow night had not pneumonia felled him.

Lewis, light heavyweight champion, had the candle lighted in St. Venetius church after visiting Galento and wishing him well:

"Sorry, Tony old boy. I hope you get on your feet real soon."

Bruins Sweep Series; Vander Meer Beaten by Phillies

CHICAGO — (AP) — Stan Hack's fifth hit of the game, a clean double to left that scored Billy Jurges from second, gave the Chicago Cubs a 15-inning 5 to 4 victory over the New York Giants Sunday, and swept the three-game series with the defending champions.

Hack previously had scored the tying run in the ninth on Carl Reynolds' single off Carl Hubbell, who entered the game in the seventh as the third Giant pitcher, succeeding Bill Lohrman and Harry Gumbert.

Bill Lee, who took over the Cubs' pitching chores in the ninth, was the winning pitcher. Hubbell was the loser.

Lee, who allowed only four hits and no runs in his six innings after succeeding Larry French and Clay Bryant, earned his thirteenth victory and his second in two days over the Giants.

The game ended the Giants' disastrous western invasion with nine defeats as against four victories and gave the Cubs a home stand of 11 victories and 2 defeats against the East. They are now one and one-half games behind the second place Giants.

The game was witnessed by a crowd of 35,078.

Grimm Says Wrigley Didn't Interfere in Management of Cubs

Chicago —(AP)— If Charlie Grimm, now under contract as a sports announcer, ever met "front office interference" during his six years as manager of the Chicago Cubs, it was only concerning player deals and then "just to find out how badly I wanted somebody."

As for rumors he wasn't given complete charge of players, "there isn't a bit of truth in them," he declared last night in a nation wide broadcast. Grimm was succeeded as manager last Wednesday by catcher Charles "Gabby" Hartnett.

He said P. K. Wrigley, Cub owner, "liked to oppose some of my ideas about deals, just to find out how badly I wanted somebody."

Old Timers Aren't So Bad and Give Kimberly Papermakers a Real Scare

BY GORDON McINTYRE

KIMBERLY — "Say-y-y, one week of steady practice and we could beat those guys, we'd be right up among 'em. They wouldn't get a loud foul"

And there you have the spirit of the old timers or the stars of other years as they dropped a 5 to 2 game to the Kimberly Papermakers here yesterday afternoon. The contest was an exhibition and benefit for Hunter Lake a member of the Kimberly squad who suffered a broken leg just before the season opened.

The remark came from Marty "Dago" Lamers and he was referring to the first four or five innings of the contest when the teams battled on even terms with the old timers getting two hits and the regular Papermakers one lone bingle.

The game was watched by a capacity crowd which really had more darned fun. There hardly was a dull moment and the old bucks turned in several plays that smacked of class. Likewise, the youngsters turned in several great exhibitions but of course the folks expected that and accordingly applauded the older men's efforts the most.

The pre-game program saw the Kimberly band parade, saw a march to the flag pole and saw Clarence Pocan, an old Kimberly favorite and now of Milwaukee, accept a big bouquet of flowers. And then the veterans, there must have been 30 in and out of uniform, posed while the camera clicked and then the game was ready to begin. About 10 veterans were on the retirement bench—they were too far removed from the game to again don the monkey suits

Have Strong Lineup

When the contest got under way the old timers had Shorty Wenzel behind the plate, Pocan was on the hill, Charley Scheil was at first, Marty Lamers at second, Freddie Hackbarth at short, Butch Thein at third, Ray Guertz in left, Ossie Cooke in center, and Sonny Tornow in right.

They made a formidable aggregation for there were at least a half dozen notorious home run hitters among them and although they took home run cuts at the ball, they failed to connect. The spirit was willing but the eyes were a bit weak.

As the contest went on, George Vanderloop went to second and then to short, George Weisgerber played first, Harry "Pat" McAndrews was in left Boots Lamers in right, Len Smith in center, Dats Crowe on the hill, Joe Shields at second and Leo Murphy behind the plate with Joe Evers also getting a chance to take a cut at the ball.

The veterans who weren't in uniform had a chance in the coaching box. Among them were George "Stormy" Kromer, Rube Verstegen, Diney DeYoung, Hank Minkebige, George Brautigam, Al Gosha, Billy Van Zeeland, and even George Calhoun and Sham O'Brien of Green Bay. Doty Bayorgeon acted as the bat boy and had to work, too, because there was only one set of bats for the teams and he had to lug the hardwoods across the diamond every frame. The umpires were Pete Leminski behind the plate, Koeska at third and Hooyman at first.

Crowe Is Wild

The story of the game is that in the fifth frame Pocan weakened and the Papermakers took advantage of the fact Catcher Leo Murphy couldn't throw to second and went on to score three runs. In the sixth they got two more off Dats Crowe who succeeded Pocan, largely because Dats was wild. The veterans went scoreless until Tuffy Horn took over the hurling that had been started by Cully Zinth, and scored their two markers off a couple solid swats. There might have been more runs if the boys hadn't been so slow.

But there were a lot of amusing things . . . Marty Lamers cavorted around the second sack like a Pavlowa when the teams were taking infield and got a big hand . . . . Pocan was given an ovation when he whiffed Hofkins in the first . . . . The old timers threatened in the second when Hackbarth drove a wicked single into left that might have been a double years ago . . . Freddie took a mean cut every time he swung . . . But Tornow and Cooke fanned and Schell lofted to end the threat.

In the Kimberly half the frame the veterans almost got a double play. . . . Pocan took Horn's grounder and tossed to Lamers to force Jack Lamers but Marty threw high to first and Brautigam rushed out to demand satisfaction because Jack put his hand up and interfered with his pa's throw. . . . The inning ended with Hackbarth taking Bongers' hard grounder and getting his man at first by inches. . . .

Brauty Still Alert

The fourth saw Brautigam rush onto the field to remind the umpire Hackbarth had four balls. . . . And later Brauty was credited with noting that Wurdinger failed to touch first base on a play and asked that the ball be tossed back to the initial sack. . . . Umpire Hooyman then waved the runner out.

Boots Lamers scored the first run for the veterans when he doubled in the seventh, went to third on Vanderloop's single and galloped home when Jack Lamers threw the ball away trying to get a runner at second. . . . . Vanderloop counted the second and last run on Wenzel's single to center. . . . . Jack Lamers had the ball waiting for Vandy at home plate but the veteran slid under it and counted.

Yes, it was more darned fun.

MENASHA — The Menasha Falcons continued their undefeated ways in the Fox River Valley league by shutting out Little Chute, 3-0, behind the one-hit pitching of young George Kosloski who also whiffed 15 Little Chute batters.

The Falcons touched Tony Guerts, Little Chute starting pitcher for five hits, of which two were home runs to account for their runs.

Herb Kosloski and Pawlowski connected for homers for the league leaders. Marvin Schuler relieved Guerts in the fourth and held the Falcons hitless the rest of the game after the damage was done. Kosloski has pitched two one hit games and a no hitter in the last six weeks in the Valley loop.

KAUKAUNA WINS, 9-1

Kaukauna — The Electric City Brewers of the Fox Valley league made only seven hits yesterday afternoon against the Neenah Merchants but averaged more than a run for each one to take an easy 9 to 1 victory. Eddie Schuler pitched for the Kaws, doling out six safeties, all singles, and striking out six. Three hurlers paraded to the mound for the Merchants, Gib Haufe starting, Orv Schultz relieving him in the second and Russ Menning taking over in the fifth. The Kaws scored three times in the second and fifth, twice in the fourth and coined a single marker in the sixth. A lapse on the part of Junior Martens, Kaukauna catcher, gave Neenah its run in the fifth. Martens, with Cheslock on third, threw to second trying to nip Bill Handler and Cheslock scored.

Joe Gossens' double with the bags loaded in the last of the second was the first hit of the game. Ves Kappell walked to lead off and stole second. After two were easy outs Martens and Diedrick walked. Schultz then relieved Haufe in time to pitch a two base hit to Gossens.

Get 2 in Fourth

Neenah got two hits in the third but couldn't count. Ken Handler singled to left with one out and Bill Handler beat out a bunt, but Gullickson forced Bill and Fahrenkrog went down swinging. The Kaws scored twice in the fourth. Gast singled to left, Martens laid down a sacrifice and was safe on first when Schultz' throw to that bag was wild. Gast taking third, from where he scored on Diedrick's infield out. Joe Gossens then smacked his second double, a blow to left, and Martens romped home.

Cheslock beat out a grounder to start the Merchant fifth. Schultz struck out and Ken Handler was hit by a pitched ball. Bill Handler forced Ken at second, Cheslock taking third, from where he scored as Martens tried to catch Bill taking second.

Two Texas leaguers helped the Kaws to three in the fifth. Busse dropped one over third, Ves Kappell walked and Eddie Schuler looped one over first. Gast then forced Schuler at second, Busse scoring. Martens lifted a fly to center and Kappell counted. The third run came in as Diedrick singled over second.

An ace in the sixth finished the run making for the day. Carl Schuler walked, took second on a wild pitch third on an infield out and scored on Busse's how to center. Gartzke's single in the eighth was the only Neenah hit in the last three frames.

APPLETON IS WINNER

The Becher Taverns defeated the Thomas Drugs of Green Bay in a Valley league game here Sunday afternoon, 6 to 2.

Abe Brokup bested Radelet on the mound allowing six hits to the Bay hurlers' seven. The Taverns bunched their blows while the Bay safeties were scattered.

Appleton jumped into the lead in the first frame when R. Rippl hit safely to center, Murphy fanned, and R. Mueller singled. Both counted when Melvin Pope pounded a single. Green Bay tied the score in the fourth when the Taverns went wild and tossed the ball all over the park.

In the sixth, Mueller and Pope drew successive walks and Bob Cotton drove a terrific triple to left scoring the two men.

The eighth saw Pope and Mueller again combine their efforts to put men in scoring position. Clem DeYoung, who turned in a great game behind the plate, then banged a double and two more runs counted and the win was assured.

Green Bay Sox Defeat Kaukauna, 5 to 4, to Seymour Fans' Delight

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

GREEN BAY — The Green Bay Sox, goaded on by the cheers of a goodly number of Seymour fans, (for there weren't any from Green Bay) broke into the win column in the second round of the Northern State league schedule here last night by defeating Kaukauna, 5 to 4. It was the first Bay win in five starts in the second half the schedule.

Both teams used two hurlers, Green Bay starting with lanky Leroy Arnes who went away suddenly and almost unnecessarily in the third after serving up a triple to Vils and a homer to Bowers good for three runs. They were the only blows he gave yet he was jerked. Eddie Mason followed him and allowed three scattered safeties and a lone run.

Bauer Retires

Kaukauna started Al Bauer and although the veteran wasn't shoving the ball past opponents, he seldom was in real difficulty. In the sixth he pitched a couple balls to Shorty Zuidmulder and when the first sacker doubled down the third base line, Al called for Manager Bowers and announced that he couldn't continue. He was succeeded by Dick Weisgerber who was wild, issued a couple walks, tossed in a couple wild pitches, hit a batter and was scored on three times in the first frame he worked. He was the losing hurler.

The highlight of the game from a Kaukauna standpoint was Bowers' homer. It was the first turned in by a Kaukauna hitter this season. Another feature was turned in by Mason and Bauer, two of the hurlers. In the first of the fifth, Mason tossed up six balls to retire the side while Bauer tossed only four in the last of the same frame.

Zuidmulder and Vondrashek turned in fielding gems. The former robbed Vils of what looked like a double in the eighth when he leaped into the air for a one handed stab of a line drive. Vondrashek robbed Jacobs of a safety in the sixth when he pulled down a blow that appeared to be ticketed with a couple more runs for the Bays.

Green Bay broke the scoring ice in the second when Patton beat out a slow roller to second which Vondrashek couldn't handle. He moved along on a sacrifice and galloped home when Bertrand dumped one between second base and centerfield.

Kaws Get Three

Kaukauna came back with three markers to usurp the lead in the first of the third. Peck walked but was out stealing second. Bauer then lofted but Powell drew a walk. Vils followed with a screecher down the first base line which caromed away from Sell and went for a triple scoring Powell. Manager Bowers then came up and dropped a homer over the left field fence. Arnes was waved from the hill at this stage, although he didn't necessarily appear at fault, and Mason followed him. Mason walked Radder but fanned Eggert.

The fourth saw Green Bay get back one of the runs. Sell opened the frame with a double to right. The next two men were easy outs but Sertich hit a pop fly near second base and while Vondrashek made a nice run and almost had the ball, he dropped it and the blow was called an error. It should have been a hit. Sell counted on the play.

In the sixth the Bays staged their final uprising and copped. Zuidmulder led off with a double and Al Bauer decided he'd have to quit because of his arm. Weisgerber followed and walked Sell. He managed to fan Patton but walked Bertrand which filled the sacks. With two strikes on Sertich, Weisgerber uncorked a pitch which plunked the catcher on the arm and Zuidmulder walked home. Mason then dumped a single into left and Sell and Patton legged it home. Mason was out between first and second, Bowers to Weisgerber to Powell to Eggert.

Kaukauna was helpless until the eighth. With two away, Radder drew a walk. Eggert then lashed a drive into left field and Radder scampered all the way to the plate. Vondrashek rolled to end the frame.

The ninth saw a minor Kaw threat. Zelinski opened with a single but Peck lofted trying to bunt. Then Zelinski was erased at second on Weisgerber's roller and Powell grounded to first to end the game.

SHIPS WINNERS, 2-1

Two Rivers — Two runs in the second frame gave Manitowoc the advantage in beating Two Rivers, 2 to 1, in a Northern State league baseball game here Sunday afternoon. Roland Schell, making his initial start for Two Rivers, dropped a pitching battle with Southpaw Schoepke of Manitowoc.

Manitowoc scored its two runs in the second inning when Vnuk doubled, Scherer hit safely to shove Vnuk to third base, Wilda doubled scoring Vnuk and Scherer came in on a squeeze play with McCambridge at bat.

Two Rivers got its lone run in the third when Meyer tripled to deep left and then scored on Blue's long fly to centerfield. Manitowoc's win this afternoon evened the series between these two clubs for the season.

Steele, Hostak in Classic Tomorrow

Rivalry Not Limited to Fighters, for Two Cities are Involved

Seattle —(AP)— Fan interest almost reached a fighting pitch today between followers of middleweight champion Freddie Steele of Tacoma, and Seattle's challenger, Al (Hostile) Hostak, who clash here tomorrow in a 15-round title bout.

Lantern-jawed Freddie ended his conditioning weighing 160½, and expects to dry out a pound or two today. The 22-year-old Savage Slav challenger from the neighboring Puget Sound city balanced the marker at 159 pounds, and plans to weigh in at 158. Steele has been established as a 10 to 9 favorite.

"On the spot" between the two warring cities was ex-heavyweight champion Jack Dempsey, here to referee the battle of Puget Sound because no other referee would satisfy both camps.

The advance sale indicates a gate close to $100,000.

Riggs, Kovacs Clash Today in Net Finals

Brookline, Mass. — (AP) — Bobby Riggs and Frankie Kovacs, labelled in that order as tennis champion Don Budge's successors, will put an end to Longwood's harassed bowl tournament today by clashing in the singles and doubles finals. The matches will be played outdoors if grass court conditions warrant.

Riggs gained the title round yesterday by wearing down the unseeded but brilliant Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., while Kovacs, 18-year-old Oakland, Cal., schoolboy, won as he pleased against Charles Hare, former British Davis cup player.

Riggs teamed with Hare for a victory over J. Norman Anderson and August Ganzenmueller of New York, and Kovacs with Bobby Harman, his townsman, for a similar decision over the third-seeded Cooke and Hal Surface of Kansas City.

Stacy May Hurl For New London Against Stars

Benefit Game for Baldy Hauk Scheduled Tomorrow Night

NEW LONDON— Baseball fans may expect 'most anything at the benefit game between the Miller High Lifes and the Outagamie County All-Stars here Tuesday evening for Orville "Baldy" Hauk who is nursing an injured left hand.

Manager D. N. Stacy of the High Lifes may try out a new pitcher, Jones of Oshkosh, if he is available, or may take the mound himself. Stacy pitched many years before he settled down to coaching high school athletics and did pretty well in his first comeback against Two Rivers at the Cool City earlier in the season.

There will be no other pitchers left as Pete Westphal hurled at Seymour yesterday and Marlyn Munsch is being primed for the Truckers' league game at Clintonville Thursday evening. Westphal did a fine job against Seymour but lost a tough game.

The County league aggregation was selected at a meeting of managers recently and will feature all teams in the loop. Black Creek will be represented by Johns "Hans" Miller, pitcher, and Charles LeCaptaine, catcher; the Grange by Ken Falk, outfielder, and Roy Haase, infielder; Hortonville by Freddie Buchman, pitcher, and Carl Samps, infielder; Shiocton by Bernard Stern, infielder, Bronco Sabrowsky, pitcher, Carl Van Straten, infielder, and Morris McDermott, catcher; Dale by Merton Schultz, catcher, Emil Glocke, infielder, and Dale Wahlers, outfielder; and the Greenville Merchants by Roman Dietzen, outfielder, Cliff Burton, outfielder or pitcher, Cy Burton, infielder, and Lefty Fredericks, infielder or pitcher.

Umpires Mac Donner and Bill Dayton of the Northern State league have volunteered to work the game. It will be their first opportunity to handle a game on the home diamond.

Baldy Hauk expects to be in action Tuesday night although his sore hand caused him to drop a fly while in the outfield at Seymour yesterday. He took Edminster's turn at bat during the last inning.

To further pep up the appearance of the High Life squad the individual players have purchased new baseball jackets and should have them all out tomorrow night. The outfits are of waterprof suede cloth in deep maroon and silver grey.

Brotherly Love Can Win Baseball Games

Washington —(AP)— The only brother battery in the big leagues—Wesley Ferrell and Rick Ferrell—counted 12 victories today in another campaign based largely on brotherly love.

The team won 14 games in the full season last year.

The Ferrells, mainstays of the Washington Senators' batterymen, get along perfectly, although baseball knows them to be two of its most temperamental members. The secret?

Wesley's version:

"I do the pitching and let Rick do the catching."

Rick's version:

"Anything Wes says is so."

When Wesley pitches, Rick is always the catcher, and few are those who ever saw Wes shake his head at one of his brother's signals.

"He calls the pitch," said Wes, "and I figure that's his job. Mine is to throw what he calls for."

NEW LONDON COPS

New London — The heavy-hitting of the New London American Legion seniors came to the front in the sixth inning of a Wolf Valley league game with Neopit here yesterday afternoon and six well-smacked drives broke down the invading Indians to give the New London team a 6 to 5 win.

Bob Jerome of Neenah worked the log for the Legionnaires and allowed nine hits, fanned three and walked none, but hit one batter in the seventh. The Wolf River club expects to have Jerome's services the rest of the season and after the Neenah team completes its Fox Valley league schedule next Sunday the Legion club will have several other pitchers available in its drive for second half honors.

The locals were blanked 5 to 0 until they began their batting barrage. Waukechon, Neopit hurler, lost control altogether and handed out two walks. In addition his support failed thrice in the fatal inning. The Indian pitcher fanned five and walked three in all.

Melvin and Herb Lathrop and Iggy Polaski collected 2-base hits while the invaders were held to singles, bunching two and three in the first and third innings, respectively.

New London Juniors Even Regional Series

NEW LONDON — The American Legion Junior baseball squad routed the Florence nine here Saturday afternoon, 19 to 7, to even the score in the scrap for the regional championship and the right to go to the state tournament. The teams will play the final tilt on neutral ground at Oconto Falls this afternoon. With Saturday's easy victory still in mind, the New London boys left this noon determined to cinch the regional honors in Class A.

After batting the Florence pitcher all over the lot for 15 runs in the first three innings, the Norris-Spencer boys took it easy and coasted on to victory.

Keith Gehrke started on the mound for the home team and allowed but one hit in three innings. Louis Stern hurled the next three and Junior Prahl finished the game.

With a 17 to 3 advantage, Manager Mac Donner allowed Kenneth Poppy to try his hand on the rubber in the sixth but after walking four successive men and allowing a hit that scored two more, Louis Stern was sent back in to finish the frame. Stern allowed five hits, Prahl none. The three New London pitchers fanned nine while eight New London players struck out.

Wehrle Favorite In State Amateur Golf Tournament

Qualifying Round Starts Today at Milwaukee Country Club

MILWAUKEE —(AP)— Par-buster Wilford Wehrle of Racine was the choice to retain his state championship as the annual Wisconsin Amateur Golf tournament got under way today on the 6,596 yard, well-bunkered Milwaukee Country club course.

Behind him was the field of 112 others with handicaps of four or less with their home clubs, and representing virtually every course of importance in Wisconsin.

Among them were some of the best known figures in state golfdom—E. P. (Ned) Allis, Milwaukee stylist out after his eleventh championship at the age of 45; John (Bud) Russell, another Milwaukeean, who led the field 11 years ago; George Johnson, Jr., Oconomowoc, 1936 champion and Lyn Lardner, Jr., also of Oconomowoc, 1932 titlist.

Picked for the dark horse role was Gordie Kummer of Milwaukee. With Allis, Kummer will have the advantage of being on his home course.

Eighteen holes were to be played by all the starters today, to reduce the field to the low 60 scorers, and ties. Tomorrow the survivors will battle for the 31 places in the match field bracket. Wehrle is automatically qualified in the match field to bring the total to 32. Match play concludes with 36-hole semi-finals Friday, with the final 36-hole test Saturday.

Junior, senior and intermediate contestants swell the number of entrants to 260, second only to the record figure of 286 reached in 1929 at Kenosha.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

LENGTHEN THE BACKSWING

One of the most flagrant faults of the average golfer is jerky, hurried hitting. This is most apparent on the short shots around the green where the player, apprehensive over the success of this shot hits down hurriedly and raises his head in the same motion to see where the ball is going. There is not quite the same anxiety displayed on the longer shots but the tendency to stroke hurriedly is there none the less. As a rule it is the result of lack of confidence in the actual golf stroke. Most players like to get the job of stroking over with as soon as possible once they have started the motion. For them the long, gradually accelerated back and downstrokes are fraught with dangers and invite errors of every description. The real trouble is largely mental and it is through this channel that the fault must be combatted. One method of cure suggested by Billie Burke, the former Open champion, is to teach the golfer to force his stroke back further in the backswing than he is enclined to do. This will take a little will power at first but, once the ice is broken, the player will find it increasingly easier to increase the width of the backswing arc. As a result he can bring the clubhead down slowly, increasing the momentum gradually and make the stroke a swing instead of sharp hit.

Report Cochrane Will Clean House This Winter

BY SID FEDER
(Pinch-Hitting for Eddie Brietz)

NEW YORK —(AP)— The grapevine says Mickey Cochrane will clean house over the winter. . . . And a lot of the current Detroit Tigers will be wagging their tails in some other ballwick next year. . . . The boom is on for Ernie Lombardi as most valuable player in the National league this season. . . Dizzy Dean is serving up a screwball as the clutch pitch in his comeback. . . . If you're in mourning for the Giants, don't forget they were six games back last Aug. 1. . . . And wound up in the world series anyway. . . .

Coast conference coaches wouldn't be at all sorry if something happens to Woodrow Wilson Strode, the classy U. C. L. A. end, between now and the time pigskins fly. . . To a man, they're staying awake nights figuring out how to stop him. . . . The Yankees, worried about that pitching staff for the current western trip, have recalled Joe Vance, who's been on a hot streak in Kansas City, and returned Joe Beggs to Newark. . . . Vance tossed his third straight win Saturday. . . Line of the week comes from Si Burick of the Dayton News. . . . They call 'em the Reeling Reds when they lose, says Si, and the Rampant Reds when they're hot. . . . Why not the "tramp-ant" Reds to make it easier all around. . . . They'll tell you Indiana and Purdue are going to be awful tough customers around the Big Ten this fall. . . .

Old Herb Pennock, who used to do a little pitching himself, is the guy responsible for Jim Bagby's success with the Red Sox. . . . If you don't think summer is almost over, you oughta get a load of the mail pouring in from the college football Boswells these days. . . . Since Dizzy Dean's comeback, the pennant odds on the Cubs have been shaved to 9-5, even with the Giants and just behind the Pirates. . . . Indians are 7-5 in the American league. . . .

Len Grant, the pudgy pro football lineman, spends the summer running a gym class for this town's policemen. . . . But he doesn't get too tough about it. . . . Lefty Grove's boy Bob, who's 18 already. (my, how time flies) is going to Duke. . . . Where the coach is Jack Coombs, who turns out all those young fellows for C. McGilliguddy's Athletics. . . .

DEPENDABLE BASS LURES
By Ozark Ripley

THE fly rod or bait casting angler for bass is never at loss for the proper bait to meet most of the fishing exigencies, whether lake or stream. The ingenuity of tackle makers seems never to end.

Since fly fishing for bass has become so popular, one has to study both the floating and under-water types of attractions. The various cork-bodied bugs are hard to beat. Some like those with erect wings and some prefer those with flat wings or those with closed wings against the body. The latter two are the easiest to cast, though they are by no means better tempters than the erect wing floaters. One should have most every color pattern if they hope to cope with all weather conditions and bass idiosyncrasies concerning colors. The feather minnow answers the same purpose though it is devoid of wings and depends for its drawing powers to the long rooster hackles which are tied to the cork body.

There are many all bucktail floating flies for bass. The bodies are larger in order to help float them. Usually the wings are extensions of bucktail on each side. If these flies begin to soak up water, they can be dried quickly by shaking them and then the customary dry fly dip may be added to insure floating properties.

Many use small spinners with success. The flash of the bright metal often stirs bass into striking actively when nothing else will. Also flies are attached to them, of various colorations, made either of hair or the regular feathered kind. Straight eyed flies are the most serviceable. They are not inclined to spoil the action of the spinner like the turned down eyed flies are sure to do. Tiny metal wobblers are also good killers with a fly rod but they must be equipt with small swivels, otherwise they will twist leaders and lines. Many of the tiny replicas of plugs serve bass fishermen well. But anglers must let them come to the surface before starting their pickup; if not, they will encounter enough water resistance to put a set in their good rods.

Every day some new casting bait shows up in the fishing tackle stores, whether of the plug type or the revolving metal type. Invariably they have good fish catches to their credit before they are manufactured on a commercial scale.

Steel Industry Sees Evidence of New Buying Gains

Production Rate Has Advanced 12 Points Since July 4

Tangible evidence of recovery in steel buying is appearing but at a less rapid pace than is indicated by the improvement in sentiment and in raw steel production, according to the magazine Steel.

The industry has high hopes that the recent spurt in activity will be furthered during the balance of the year, although subsequent betterment in operations undoubtedly will be unable to match that of the past two weeks, when ingot output was stepped up 50 per cent.

Production rose an additional 4 points last week to 36 per cent, equal to the rate reached in the first week of April, highest this year. Since the July 4 holiday the rate has advanced 12 points.

The increase last week more than compensated for the improvement that has occurred in rolled steel demand and is accounted for partly by the necessity for mills to bolster their stocks of semifinished material.

Steel producers permitted their inventories of semi-finished products to decline during the first half, resulting in only scant supplies of certain analyses lately. The moderate pickup in finished steel sales, consequently, dictated an increase in semifinished production. In the interest of economy some mills are producing a larger quantity of ingots than required immediately, hence recent gains in operations have run ahead of the expansion in consumption.

Diversified Orders

Encouraging to producers is the diversification of recent orders. A sprinkling of purchases by automotive accounts for final runs on 1938 models, however, has moderated for the time being as the period for the changeover to 1939 editions is being entered. Little support to steel buying will be provided by motor interests until this work is completed.

Reflecting automotive plant shutdowns, assemblies last week totaled 32,070 units, a decline of nearly 10,000 from the week before. General Motors curtailed from 17,900 units to 13,415; Ford was steady at 12,500; Chrysler reduced from 6,190 units to 2,750; while all others cut from 5,420 to 3,405.

Production of material for the building of 5,550 freight cars for the Southern railway has been an important factor in boosting steelmaking at Chicago and Birmingham. Chicago operations gained 1.5 points to 34 per cent last week, while the southern district was 8 points higher at 50 per cent. Gains predominated changes elsewhere, with Pittsburgh up 2 points to 27 per cent, Wheeling up 6 points to 51 per cent, Youngstown up 5 points to 35, eastern Pennsylvania up 0.5 to 28, New England up 5 to 40 and Cincinnati up 12 to 50 per cent. Production was unchanged at four centers — Buffalo at 35, Cleveland at 26, Detroit at 29 and St. Louis at 18.

Railroads are marking time in the purchase of material and equipment, and little domestic business in freight cars and locomotives is in immediate prospect. Building and heavy engineering projects are productive of fair tonnages, and this steel outlet shortly gives promise of being swelled by PWA spending.

Battleship Bids

Navy department will take bids Oct. 5 on three battleships, requiring an estimated 50,000 tons of rolled steel.

Much of the uncertainty earlier this month as to prices has been removed, although the lower quotations now in effect have failed to persuade most consumers to order steel beyond early needs. However, clarification of prices has resulted in some balancing of stocks of users and warehouses and has helped to promote a fairly large number of small purchases.

Pig iron buying has subsided, following active coverage of third quarter requirements recently when price reductions were accompanied by unconfirmed rumors that part of the cuts would be revoked in August. Pig iron shipments against contracts are slow to increase, reflecting light operations among most foundries. Inquiries for castings are reported heavier in some districts.

Scrap prices continue to forecast gains in steel production, the market being strong in all directions and rising further in a number of areas last week. Increases at Chicago and eastern Pennsylvania boosted the scrap composite 42 cents to $13.50, highest since February. The iron and steel composite was advanced 3 cents by the rise in scrap to $36.30. The finished steel composite was unchanged at $57.20.

Today and Tomorrow

The Franco-British Combination

Paris, July 22.

It would be too much to say that all the French and all the British see eye to eye on the problems of Europe. For in both countries there are influential factions seeking for one reason or another to push their governments towards separate action. Thus there are Frenchmen of the Left who would rather support the Spanish Republicans than maintain the entente with Britain and there are British conservatives who would like to make an agreement with Hitler by giving him a free hand in eastern Europe. But today, largely as the result of the Austrian conquest, the great majority in both countries realize that the deadliest danger to both peoples is their disunion, that their paramount interest in these times is always to find a common policy and always to act together.

Each Modifies Normal Approval to Problems

In order to act together each of the two partners is being compelled to modify somewhat its normal approach to European questions. Thus in regard to the crucial problem of Czechoslovakia, the French start with the traditional idea that the Czechs must be able to resist the creation of a Pan-German empire in eastern Europe. The British, on the other hand, start with the traditional feeling that they are vitally interested in Europe only up to the Rhine. Thus the tendency of French policy would be to urge the Czechs to make no important concession to Germany and the tendency of British policy would be to abandon the Czechs to German aggression.

But neither France nor Britain can afford to follow its traditional line. The French cannot risk war with Germany unless they are sure of British support. And the British cannot run the risk of having France destroyed as a great power. For then they would have no one to defend them on the Rhine. So each is compelled to alter its prejudices and to find a common line.

No Decision on Point Where Czechs Should Fight

The present Franco-British entente, which was founded at the end of April when the French ministers visited London, marks the determination not to fight together if they must. The two governments have almost reached a common line in regard to Czechoslovakia. They have agreed that the Czechs must concede a very great deal to the Sudeten Germans but that the Czechs do not have to make concessions which would dismember the Czechoslovak Republican or give the Reich control through the German minority of Czech foreign policy. They have agreed that if the Czechs are attacked after making reasonable concession, the French will honor their treaty obligations and mobilize, and that the British will follow.

This is very near to being a complete program on the most vital issue confronting Europe. For while it is certain that the British and French are agreed that there is a point at which the Czechs need concede no more, a point at which the Czechs are entitled to fight, and to be supported, it is not yet clear where that point is. The disposition of the British would be to ask the Czechs to give up more than the French would like to ask them to give up. If it were not for the entente, this might still divide them. But with the entente they are agreed that they will agree.

Prospect of Finding Adjustment is Improved

Moreover, with the entente, that is to say with the agreement to stand together and if necessary to fight together, the possibility of finding a temporary adjustment in Czechoslovakia is greatly improved. If anything can make Hitler conciliatory for a while, this will do it. For there is no doubt that the Franco-British alliance is the most imposing thing in Europe and no one could possibly doubt that it is very much stronger than the German-Italian combination.

The union of the French and the British is not merely the union of the two greatest European empires. It is that. But it is more than that. The union is bound to attract to itself, with a force like that of gravity, many other nations in Europe. Poland, Rumania, Jugoslavia, and perhaps even Hungary have one paramount interest, to be on the side of and in the good graces of the stronger combination. Until recently they had every reason to think that Hitler was invincible and irresistible and that the Allies were demoralized. So they moved into his camp. The existence of a stronger combination in the west means that they must get back on to the fence so as to be ready to jump to the winning side.

And then there is Russia, about which little is said, because little that can be relied upon is known. But this much is clear enough, that the Russian army counts for something and that Russian resources, if the Germans got hold of them, might count for very much, and though not many people in the west like the moral implications of a combination with Russia, the general feeling is that it is better to have Russia as an ally than as an enemy.

We are passing through dangerous days, and it would be foolish optimism to think that the crisis is past and that war is definitely averted for this season. But the prospects are better because the nations that oppose war are stronger than they were, and because they are no longer frightened.

After two were gone in the third Van Denzen sent a two base hit to righ but Steve Andrejeski popped out. St. Mary's finally got a run in the fourth when Johnny Niesz sent a clout over the centerfielder's head for a round tripper. Two more were added in the fifth when Gloudemans was safe on an error and Jack Licht brought them both around with a four base hit to right. Niesz got his second hit in the sixth, a double with one gone, but McMahon and Landreman flied out.

V. F. W. to Draft Law Proposal for Bike Safety Plan

Ordinance Covering Project Will be Submitted To Kaukauna Council

Kaukauna — An ordinance to be submitted to the common council for enactment as the first step in the bicycle safety club program of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be drawn up at a meeting of that organization Aug. 9 at Legion hall. Charles Clune is general chairman for the project.

Passage of the ordinance will provide the base on which the club will be organized. The measure will state that all bicycles must have licenses, and list conditions which must be fulfilled for a permit to be granted. A penalty of not more than $100 or imprisonment for not more than 90 days is in the ordinance, but a penalty which may be used in place of this, suspending the license for not more than 30 days, is the one to be used in conjunction with the club's work.

Regular meetings of the club will be held at which an educational program will be carried out over a period of time with the idea of training future automobile drivers. Prominent speakers will be heard from time to time and motion pictures, easily obtainable in this line, will be shown. After the club is well organized and well under way bicycle tours and other forms of outdoor recreation for the pleasure of the club as a whole will be encouraged.

Ten Rules for Safety

The "ten commandments" for bicycle riders will be woven into the ordinance. They are ride only on the right side of the street; one person to a bicycle; stop at all "stop" signs; do not ride at night without a light on the front and reflector or lamp on the rear; do not ride abreast of another bicycle rider; do not ride out of alleys or driveways, or from behind parked cars, without stopping and looking to see that sidewalks and streets are clear of traffic; obey traffic signals and the orders of traffic officers and school patrols; do not engage in any weaving in or trick riding on streets; be familiar with all traffic rules and regulations.

A bicycle safety club will be organized to effectively enforce the ordinance. Club members, from the ages of 6 to 17 years, inclusive, will provide their own court for trying offenders. The whole project is part of the National Youth program of the veterans.

LOTS FOR SALE 65

5 NICE BUILDING LOTS—3 on W. Commercial St. and 2 on W. Spring St. between N. Gillett and N. Douglas Sts.
VOLLMER-GILLESPIE

$2,750
This is one of the finest buys and investment opportunities that we know of. It is a plot of land, size 120 x 310, located on S. Mason St., close to Alicia park and the Fox river. On the property there is an eight-room, two-story house, a barn and a drilled well. This house could very easily be converted into a two-family home which would bring in a very good rental income. The remainder of the plot would be divided into four liberal-sized lots, or, the house moved to some other location, this plot would make five large lots. The barn contains enough lumber to build two good garages.

Some building contractor could secure some mighty fine building lots at a real price here or some individual make real money on a small investment. This price of $2,750 is a cash price but anyone with $1,500 or $1,400 could handle the deal with a mortgage. If you are looking for an investment that will show you a nice profit—this is it!

New York —(AP)—Stocks churned furiously for a time in today's market and, while selected issues managed to hold gains running to two points or so, profit-selling pulled many leaders down from hteir best in late dealings and cancelled numerous gains.

In the forenoon the ticker tape fell as much as three minutes behind. There were a few subsequent speed-ups but several especially slow intervals interviewed as prices backed away.

Steels, pointing the way in the morning, lost vitality in the tailend of the proceedings as this week's official estimate of production was somewhat less than had been looked for in financial quarters. Mill operations, though, were placed at 37 per cent of capacity, up .6 from the preceding week at a new peak since last November. It was the third consecutive week' rise.

The news, on the whole, stressed recovery efforts in business and industry.

Transfers were around 2,100,000 shares.

Wheat Prices in Sharp Declines To Five-Year Low

Increase in United States Visible Supply Acts As Drag

Chicago—(AP)— Wheat fell 1⅞ cents a bushel here today and outdid bottom price records that went back five years.

A big increase of 18,034,000 bushels of the United States visible supply total acted as a weight on values. Corn, affected by favorable crop conditions, tumbled also, despite new export purchases estimated at fully a million bushels.

Receipts were: Wheat 443 cars, corn 561, oats 232.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛-1⅜ under Saturday's finish, Sept. 67⅞-68, Dec. 70-70⅛, corn ⅝-1⅞ down, Sept. 56⅜-⅞, Dec. 55⅜-½, and oats ⅜-1⅛ off.

Democratic Chiefs Backing Pennsylvania Governor in Fight Against Investigation

Harrisburg, Pa. —(AP)— Democratic leaders rallied around Governor George H. Earle today for a legislative fight against a grand jury investigation of Pennsylvania's "little New Deal."

Earle seeks from the Democratic-controlled legislature, which begins a special session tonight, laws to curb such inquiries and "protect the constitutional rights" of the legislative and executive arms of the government.

He summoned the legislature as a final expedient in his three-months' battle against charges of blackmail, extortion and coercion of state employes aimed at him and 13 of his associates.

The charges grew out of the bitter primary campaign in which the Democrats were split three ways. Some were hurled by Charles J Margiotti, then attorney general and an independent candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Earle later fired him.

Margiotti carried his accusations to the Republican district attorney of Dauphin county (Harrisburg), Carl B. Shelley, who obtained the right to proceed with the investigation by a grand jury. It is scheduled to start Aug. 8.

Earle denied misconduct in office. He fought the case through the state supreme court and lost, was refused the right to have his present attorney general, Guy K. Bard, supersede Shelley and loosened a blast of criticism at the judges whom he accused of "usurpation" of power.

Negro Admits Guilt in Chicago Murder Case

Chicago —(AP)— Earl Hicks, 19, pleaded guilty today and agreed to testify against Robert Nixon, 18, his co-defendant on a charge of murdering Mrs. Florence Johnson, 34-year-old old mother of two small children, with a brick.

Hicks changed his plea to guilty after assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley agreed in exchange not to seek the death penalty for him. The prosecutor insisted, however, the extreme penalty be sought for Nixon. Both defendants are Negroes.

Nixon's trial before Judge John C. Lewe in criminal court was scheduled to follow a hearing on his sanity.

The auto accident in which Allen was injured occurred last May 15. Porath was charged next day with reckless driving and paid a fine of $100. The manslaughter charge was placed after Allen died nearly two weeks later.

One Out of Every 37 Persons in U. S. Is a Criminal, Bar Committee Finds

Indianapolis —(AP)— One out of every 37 persons in the United States, where "200,000 citizens will commit murder before they die," is a criminal, the law enforcement committee of the American Bar association reported today.

Characterizing crime as one of America's "major problems," the committee did not recommend specific steps to prevent further spread of law violation.

A better record of enforcement, the five-member committee pointed out, could be brought about "by increasing the powers and numbers of officers, by decreasing the safeguards of accused persons and by limiting our freedom with regulations." But, the committee added, "as a general proposition, action along such lines would be unwise."

"Our committee feels that its work does not lie in any of the following fields: Juvenile delinquency, crime prevention, personnel, substantive law, procedure, probation, imprisonment and parole," the report said.

"The committee does believe that improvement in criminal law enforcement is possible through action along other lines, and that the American Bar association has an obligation to perform in this regard."

The committee estimated cost of crime in this country at $15,000,000,000 annually and warned "each year it shows an increase."

Major crimes are committed at a rate of one every 22 seconds, the report said, with the result that the United States today "has the greatest prison population, in relation to total population, of any country in the world."

New London Youths Make Western Trip in Model T

New London—"Adventures in a Model T" is no story book yarn to Bob and Charles Pfeifer. Just a week ago last Saturday the two youths, sons of Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Pfeifer of this city, climaxed a long-cherished ambition by heaping a few belongings and camping equipment in the back end of their dilapidated machine and starting off without announcement on a trip to California—or bust.

Saturday the folks here received a card from Wyoming dated Wednesday, July 20. "Spirits high" was the most illuminating comment offered in description of their journey.

The travelers are roughing it thoroughly and plan to make the return trip home the same way after a brief visit in the land of perpetual sunshine.

Three other youths started on a similar journey last week, only in quest of jobs. Sam Huzzar of this city, Leroy Pohlman of Bear Creek and another out-of-town boy left last Thursday in an old car in search of work among the grain harvests in the Dakotas. After reaching the western boundary of Minnesota they heard reports of Dakota crops ravaged by grasshoppers so after threshing Friday and Saturday near Rochester, Minn., the trio earned enough funds to return home. They completed the 600-mile trip Sunday morning and plan to return to the west in about a month.

made it, leaving Bandera seething with fury, swearing revenge by every saint in the calendar.

With another chuckle Ankrom rose to his feet, lounged against the shadowed wall while he fished the makings from his pocket and rolled a cigarette. He would have a final smoke, and then go hunt his bunk. His left hand rolled the quirley while his right sought the band about his hat, procured a match and struck it. The bursting flame illumined his face and brought out the sharp angles of it.

Even as the match burst into flame, another flame licked out from the shadows beneath an ancient pepper tree thirty yards away. The cigarette ripped from Ankrom's mouth, so close had been the miss. A report smashed loudly on the stillness, flattened out across the yard, beat up against the buildings. And on its heels another, even as Ankrom whirled, his hand streaking to the waistband of his trousers: A blur of motion stirred the shadows beneath the foliage; something dropped heavily in the dust.

With gun held ready in his hand Ankrom sprinted forward. He jerked to a stop before the tree as a vague white figure snapped up from the ground to confront him. It was the figure of a girl.

'Duck Out Of This'

"Who—who are you?"

"Abe Streeter, ma'am. Was that you doing that shooting?"

"No—yes! No! No, of course not!"

Despite the agitation in her voice Ankrom realized that this was not Lee Trone. Therefore, he reasoned it must be the golden-haired creature posing as Betty Struthers What was she doing here? What was that thing in her hand? Ankrom leaned closer and saw that it was a pistol; he saw also that with her other hand the girl was pressing something to her breast — something that looked like folded papers.

"What are you doing here?" he whispered. "What have you got in your hands?"

She drew back. The hand with the papers disappeared inside the neckline of her dress and came out empty. Ankrom heard the sound of running footsteps. People would soon be upon them, hurling questions.

"Duck out of this," he said. "I'll see you later."

She peered at him strangely. Then suddenly she turned and ran.

A man came pounding up, grabbed Ankrom by the arm. "What's goin' on?" he growled. "What was all that shootin'?" Before Ankrom could answer, the man turned his head, bellowed across his shoulder: "Get a lantern, somebody! We got to have a light here!"

Ankrom saw one of the running figures whirl and retrace its steps. The others came on and grouped themselves about Ankrom and the burly man who held him. A hand felt down his wrist and closed upon the barrel of his gun. "I'll take this," the heavy voice said. Ankrom, recognizing now the sheriff in the man who held him, relinquished his weapon.

"Speak up, you. Let's hear your name."

Ankrom said, "Abe Streeter." He felt the sheriff's grip relax. "Oh—well, who in hell was you shootin' at?"

"I wasn't. Somebody else was doing that shooting, Ratchford."

Ratchford showed impatience. "Is the fella's name a secret?"

"Reckon so—leastways, he didn't leave me any card."

"Where was you standin'?"

"By the bunkhouse." Ankrom said. "I was lightin' a cigarette That shot came along an' snicked it right out of my mouth"

"Kinda close, eh?"

"Well, I don't know. The fellow might have been aimin' to have some fun with me. I mean he might have done it on purpose——"

"Ain't no one round here could shoot that good." Ratchford grunted. "Excepting maybe — Claydell. An' Claydell hasn't got here yet. Prob'ly changed his mind an' decided to postpone his visit till tomorrow," he cleared his throat. "This where you figured them shots come from?"

"One, anyway. First one, I think. I ain't sure about the second When that cigarette went skally-hootin' I whirled an' saw a blur among the shadows here under this tree an' came pelting over. Hadn't had a chance o make out anything when you comes you an' these others."

A bobbing light showed Ankrom a man running toward them with a lantern. Ratchford took the lantern from him and held it high above his head. In the sand a short three feet away a shape lay motionless.
